As Hines Went On Trial

Reveal 'Shake-down' To N.Y. Club

$125 LEVIED EVERY WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Joseph M. (Big Joe) Ison, Negro policy banker known as "Spasm," testified today that the "Dutch" Schultz gang levied $125 a week against his bank for "Jimmy Hines' club."

Ison, who had described Schultz' entry into the numbers game and its organization into a racket monopoly, was a state witness at the trial of James J. Hines, Tammany district leader accused of supplying court protection for the racket at a salary of $500 to $1000 a week. Hines' political organization in the 11th assembly district is the Monogahela Democratic club.

Assistant District Attorney Sol Gelb drew testimony from Ison that some months after Schultz "muscle" in on his bank an "unexplained" item of $125 appeared on the weekly expense sheet prepared by Schultz lieutenants.

Ison said he asked J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, Schultz attorney, and George Weinberg, racket operations manager, "What the $125 was for."

"They told me," he said, "that it was for Jimmy Hines' club."

Ison testified that at about the same time the $125 item appeared on the expense sheet, the number of arrests of policy employees dropped in half.

$75,000 Profits

In 1933, he said, he had accumulated $75,000 in book profits which the monopoly refused to pay off.

Davis explained $10,000 of "the nick," Ison said, by saying "it went to pay for fixing."

"He said 'Don't you think it's worth it,'" Ison said, "and I just hunched my shoulders."

BANK BUILDING IS WRECKED IN BLAST

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif., Aug. 19.—(UP)—The two-story stone and granite branch of the Bank of America was wrecked today by an explosion that shattered scores of windows in the Mountain View business district and was heard for miles around.

Residents were shaken by the blast. There were, however, no casualties. Police said it looked more like a "revenge blast" than an attempt to blow the bank's vault.

Night Marshal Claude Steach said he was "almost knocked down" by the explosion. He and two bakers, John and Vincent Brignani reported they chased a "short" man several blocks when they saw him running down the street a moment after the blast. The man escaped.

Police said the bank vault had not been tampered with.

Wilbur L. Camp, the bank manager, said he believed "someone" with an idea of getting "revenge" might have been responsible. Police said he would not elaborate further.

Undersheriff Harry Schumann said black powder apparently had been used.

The explosion occurred shortly after 3 a. m. It was heard at Santa Clara 10 miles away.

Windows along the main street of the business section and in numerous homes were cracked or broken.

Let Contracts For Nursery Ward

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Three contracts were awarded today for erection of a nursery ward at the Pacific colony at Spadra. John Strona of Pomona received the general work contract for a bid of $158,190.

The electrical work award went to Vanocott Co. of Los Angeles, for $5842, and the plumbing work to Traverser-Riddell, Inc., of Los Angeles, for $13,290.

The department of public works also awarded Vido Kovacevich of Southgate, a $7450 contract for improvement of the grounds at the state office building in Los Angeles.

Airplane Attacks British Ship

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Lloyds reported from Tangier today that the British steamer Stanforth had been attacked by an airplane, "for airplanes," 15 miles west of Barcelona and was asking for assistance.

The captain of the Stanforth later reported to the J. A. Billmeir company, owners of the ship, that the bombs from the air raiders missed the vessel, which was proceeding to Oran.

Bags 5 Point Buck With .22 Rifle

LAYTONVILLE, Calif., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Eleven-year-old Leonard Berchold proudly exhibited a set of five point horns today — his trophy for bagging an oversize buck with a .22 rifle.

Leonard is the son of Clarence Berchold, one of the pitchers of the Mendocino county baseball league. He shot the buck near Longvale.

Eighty-five big bucks have been taken out of the Laytonville area so far this season. Most of them are larger and fatter than last year's game.

Criminologists Are Robbed

The robber took four magnifying glasses and three devices for identifying cloth. Value of the loot $33.

"Unclean" BRIDGES MAY BE GRILLED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Chairman Martin Dies, D. Tex., of the house committee investigating un-American activities, announced today that Harry Bridges, Pacific Coast director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, may be subpoenaed to testify concerning aid allegedly given him by government officials during deportation proceedings.

The committee will hold hearings on the west coast after completing its work here. "We may summon Bridges when we get there," Dies said.

Edward F. Sullivan, special investigator for the committee, has charged that a high official of the labor department gave Bridges detailed instructions while "patriotic citizens" were trying to deport him. Referring to reports that several members of the committee wanted Bridges' version of these charges, Dies said:

"The committee hasn't acted on that matter yet. After we get all the evidence in that we can have, we'll decide whether we want to call him."

Millard Tydings of Maryland, above, who has opposed many New Deal measures and incurred the dislike of President Roosevelt to such an extent that the nation's chief executive put the curse on him in the form of a "purge" and asked that the voters of the Southern state elect Rep. David Lewis in place of Tydings.

TYDINGS PLANS TO ATTACK PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Sen. Millard E. Tydings, D. Md., read out of Democratic party by President Roosevelt for "betraying" the New Deal, was reported ready today to make a counterattack.

At Salisbury, Md., last night, in his first address since Mr. Roosevelt asked Maryland voters to defeat him, Tydings did not mention the White House action. But in an address at Baltimore tonight or in a radio address Sunday he is expected to join two other objects of the president's party purge — Sen. Walter F. George, D. Ga., and Chairman John O'Connor, D. N. Y., read out of Democratic party.

O'Connor, in a radio address last night from New York, accused the president of using "foreign" tactics which, he said, provide an "escalator to dictatorship," and issued the same protest against "one man government" that had been made earlier this week by George.

In his address to eastern shore farmers and businessmen, Tydings said that he never would consent to be "a rubberstamp or a ventriloquist's dummy."

Pastor Sentenced To Life Term

He pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge H. L. Berry at a special session of court convened at midnight to hear his case. He was taken to the prison less than two hours after the court had been recessed.

He broke down yesterday while being questioned by State's Attorney Floyd Perry and admitted that he had killed the girl Aug. 15 with poisoned wine, moved her body to the basement of his 10-room parsonage, and then had set fire to the building in an attempt to conceal the murder.

CIO Prepares To Hold Conclave

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Warring factions in the Los Angeles county CIO prepared today in pre-convention committee sessions for drawn out battles tomorrow and Sunday when the state CIO is called into session by Harry Bridges, Pacific coast leader.

Half a dozen unions that withdrew from the county council were reported adhering to their announced intention to boycott the convention by withholding representation at the sessions.

Bridges was expected to take personal charge of the meeting in an attempt to whip seceding unions back into line. John Brophy, right-hand man to John L. Lewis, head of the national CIO, was to arrive here tonight in an attempt to iron out the difficulties.

MOBILIZATION LAW INVOKED IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The cabinet decided today to invoke the sections of the mobilization law requiring all physicians, pharmacists and technical school graduates to register for emergency service.

It was planned to ask the imperial consent of Emperor Hirohito to the new regulation at once. As soon as he approves it, ordinances will be promulgated and men who register under them will be subject to conscription for service as they are needed.

This was only one evidence today of the enlarged demands for man power due to the Chinese war.

The commercial newspaper Chuang reported that the war office had decided to notify second class reservists to be ready for instant call. These reservists were instructed to register any new addresses with the war office and to keep themselves available for call at all times.

The Domei News agency reported that the war office was considering a two year reduction in the present system under which students are exempted from conscription examinations until they reach 27. Students would be exempted only up to their 25th year.

The plane, a Machi-Celere 94, belonging to the Macci company, of Varese, crashed yesterday 15 minutes after the takeoff from Varese. A few hours before, a bombing plane crashed near the Cagliari airport, killing the pilot and injuring three other crew members.

1000 LEAVE JOBS TODAY

ANAHEIM, Cal., Aug. 19.—(UP)—If the labor strike situation in the citrus groves and fields of Orange county becomes any worse the Orange County Associated Farmers will invite migrant American labor into this region to replace Mexican workers, George Graham, secretary of the organization, said today.

Result of an impasse between growers and CIO Mexican field workers, a county-wide strike of the workers was in effect today.

According to their allegations, hundreds of bean harvesters have been threatened with bodily harm should they go to work and fear caused them to refuse to go to work this morning although they were offered police escort.

Frank Swain, foreman on the Ted Cox ranch at Irvine, said his workers yesterday told him they were advised to remain home this morning "because if you don't, we will overturn your transport truck when you start to work."

Refuse To Work

Deputy Sheriffs Ezra Stanley and Fred Swayze, on patrol duty at 6 a. m. today, reported they assertedly found five automobiles containing CIO members at intersections near the vicinity of First and Artesia where workers were to gather before being carried to work in trucks. The workers failed to appear. Gilbert Gomez ranch foreman at 1903 West First, and his son, Jesse, 1316 West Fifth, reported workers would not be on the job today. At 8:20 a. m., the officers checked with E. E. Cox and found that to avoid trouble, he had paid off 25 workers from San Juan Capistrano this morning when they appeared and told them not to return to work. Yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Jackson, Chief Criminal Deputy Merle Dean and Deputy Ben Sconce were called to the Cox and W. Brad Hellis ranches. Two truck loads of Mexican men and women had just left the Cox place after assertedly threatening 125 workers. Sixty-seven workers at the same time walked off the job on the Hellis ranch, the officers

ROOSEVELT DEFENDS KINGSTON ADDRESS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today indicated that he did not have in mind extension of the Monroe doctrine to Canada in his Kingston, Ont., speech in which he pledged United States aid to the Dominion in event of aggression by a power other than Great Britain.

The chief executive's clarification of this point came when he was reminded at a press conference at the summer White House that Washington was interpreting the doctrine as application of the doctrine to America's northern neighbor. The president arrived here earlier from a one day trip to Canada.

He suggested that his questioners read the Monroe doctrine for a direct reply and then added that he had made no mention of Latin America in his Kingston utterances yesterday.

Mr. Roosevelt who will be at the summer White House for the next 10 days declined to discuss domestic politics. When he was recalled that Rep. John O'Connor, D. New York, chairman of the House rules committee, whom he called a new deal "betrayer" had accepted his challenge, he merely observed that he had read the headlines where the situation was concerned.

The fish was finally killed after a 90-minute battle. Capt. Stewart said. The A-25 was reported undamaged—thanks to the barrels.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Two Reno pilots, Ted Morrill and Mark Peters, today entered the second day of their attempt to establish a new world's record for sustained flight of airplanes weighing less than 1000 pounds.

The pilots, who started their endurance flight at noon yesterday, hope to remain aloft until Sunday and break the previous mark of 63 hours and 45 minutes set by a pair of eastern pilots.

CIO Calls Strike In Orange County

reported. The sheriff advised ranchers today to immediately place "no trespassing" signs about their fields.

Two economic factions in the county today stand opposed, one to the other — The Associated Farmers and the Vegetable Field Workers, as represented by the CIO.

Charges Hurdled

And statements, including charges and counter-charges, from both sides this morning gave strong indication of a spreading strike of field workers, and that a field labor crisis will be reached in the local area within the next few days.

A climax was reached shortly after noon yesterday when workers walked off the job on the Hellis ranch.

Subsequent developments yesterday afternoon were:

1.—A statement to The Register from the Associated Farmers, presented by George Graham, secretary of the organization, declaring that communism and radical agitation is responsible for an impending labor crisis; and a scathing denunciation of alleged tactics of Lucio Lucio, of Santa Ana, and Pat Callahan, district president of the CIO with headquarters in Los Angeles, "for agitating the present labor troubles."

Lucio Withdraws

2.—Lucio appeared at The Register office this morning and declared that he had "washed his hands" of the entire situation. "Since the CIO has come into the picture," said Lucio, "I have withdrawn. I do not want to be associated in any way with the CIO and their tactics with the Mexican field workers in Orange county."

3.—A statement from Dorothy Ray, CIO representative from Callahan's office, asserting that the majority of Japanese growers in Orange county were willing to contract to pay 30 cents an hour, an increase of 5 cents an hour over the current wage against which field workers are protesting, but the Associated Farmers had stepped in as representatives of the Japanese growers and blocked negotiations with individual growers.

4.—Strong indications from Graham that the Associated Farmers will enter into any negotiations or conferences only with the Mexican Consulate himself, and not with Lucio, "who continually represents himself as the local representative of the Mexican Consulate," and declaration that growers cannot afford to pay 30 cents.

Makes Denial

5.—Denial by Miss Ray that growers are unable to pay 30 cents an hour, "since many of them, such as in the Hellis case, are paying that amount but it is absorbed from the worker by a charge of 45 cents per worker per day by the labor contractor, who contracts with growers to furnish workers and provide transportation to and from the fields; and an appeal for the creation of an arbitration board, to be set up by one man selected by the growers, another by the workers, and a third to be chosen by the two men appointed by the respective bodies—and this board's decisions to be binding upon both the growers and workers."

"Orange county agriculturalists," said a statement from Graham, in part, "All of Orange county citizens are getting tired of this continual round of trouble-making" ("by Lucio, Callahan and Miss Ray"). "The past week, men wishing to go to work have been threatened and intimidated and violence and personal injury have been reported. All of Orange county," Graham's statement continues, "is interested in the welfare of its most

Fullerton Teacher Gets Job for Life

"The workers," declared Miss Ray, "must have 30 cents an hour to make a living wage. If it is true that the growers cannot realize a profit by paying that amount direct to the worker, and not a part of it to a labor contractor, then let us have an impartial arbitration board to check all the true facts. The labor contractor should be abolished. The 68 workers who left the Hellis ranch have joined the CIO. We are interviewing more and more of the growers. We plan meetings. The strike will spread unless there is some negotiations reached."

Won't Harvest Crop

After the workers had left the Hellis ranch, Hellis told deputies and newspapermen that "there is no use trying to harvest my crop. I'll leave the beans in the field."

A disturbance at the same time yesterday was reported on the E. E. Cox ranch, where, however, workers were reported to have remained in the field.

It was estimated by the CIO that at least 1,000 workers had left jobs and it was said that in many instances the field work was being carried on by other Mexican laborers who had not affiliated with the CIO.

Following on the heels of the other statements, Pablo de la Cruz, of Westminster, secretary of the Federation of Unions of the Campeonatos (field workers) and Obereas (workers in other fields), said:

"Prior to Aug. 15, our organization had taken part in the strike for a 30-cent wage, but on that date, the responsibility for anything that may happen in connection with the strike rests with the CIO because the workers have affiliated with that organization. Therefore, in the event of any trouble, the Campeonatos is not to blame in any way."

'OUTSIDE HELP' ORDER VOIDED

Lack of sufficient WPA workers in the southern end of Los Angeles county to man present projects there today resulted in rescinding of a recent order to bring 600 of the Los Angeles county men to Orange county Monday to be employed on the joint outfall sewer line, damaged by the March 3 flood. J. F. Johnson, assistant director of operations for the WPA in Southern California, announced today.

"We need all of the Los Angeles county WPA men for the Los Angeles projects now," Johnson said, "but we will use another plan to expedite the work on the joint outfall line."

Explains Methods

Work on the Talbert drainage WPA project will be suspended and the men there assigned Monday to work on Section 1, lower end, of the outfall line, he pointed out. That will increase the number of men on that job from 350 to 500. Furthermore, the workers, have been employed six hours per day on basis of a five-day week, will work eight hours per day for a five-day week, beginning Monday, and a special shift of men will be employed on Saturdays so that the work will be carried on 48 hours per week. The 300 men now employed on Section 2, upper end, of the outfall line, will continue to remain on the job there, Johnson said.

Police News

Santa Ana officers last night were asked by Maywood police to be on the lookout for two boys, 15 and 17 years old, respectively, whose parents reported them as runaways.

Paul C. Phillips, 1215 West First street, reported to police last evening someone shot his dog with a BB-gun or .22 caliber rifle. Two boys who found the injured dog at Fifth and Shelton took him home and Phillips carried the dog to a veterinarian for treatment.

Norton Gaston, 33, Santa Ana, was booked at county jail last night on a 15-day term following conviction on a drunk driving charge in Newport Beach. He had the alternative of paying a $150 fine.

CANDIDATES SPEAK

A full day's schedule is confronting Senator William Gibbs McAdoo in his official visit to Orange county tomorrow.

Starting at 2:30 p. m. McAdoo and Mrs. McAdoo will be escorted to the Huntington Beach city auditorium by a delegation led by Horace C. Head and Mrs. Mae B. Head, where he will make his first address.

Following the address, McAdoo will meet friends at the local McAdoo headquarters on North Broadway. At 6:30 p. m., a dinner will be served at the social hall of the Christian church at which the senator and Mrs. McAdoo will be guests of honor. At 7:30 p. m. McAdoo will outline his platform for candidacy at a public meeting at Birch park. A band concert will precede the address.

DE MOLAY HONORS AWARDED TO TWO SANTA ANA MEMBERS

High honors in DeMolay activity were accorded two Santa Ana youths today with the announcement of Gregory Watson, ritualistic advisor of the Santa Ana chapter, that Robert Wayne Luxembourg, 19, and Robert Clay Collier, 19, were selected as "Representative DeMolay" members. It is the first time in the history of the chapter that active members have been chosen for the distinction.

Luxembourg is the son of Fire Chief and Mrs. John Luxembourg, and lives at 2414 Fairmont avenue. Collier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Collier of 1325 North French street.

All-Around Advancement

Both youths were chosen for the signal position on a basis of an all-around advancement in spiritual, mental, a physical activity as well as DeMolay activity. In the last five years there have only been 330 such awards in the entire nation, Watson said.

Last June John K. Schrier of 1421 Bush street, was selected for the honor but was at that time an alumnus of the DeMolay chapter. Formal presentation of the awards will be made at a public installation to be held at the Masonic temple on Oct. 1.

proud of the organization. Wishing you continued success, and with a good shake of the hand, Sincerely, (Signed), Louis Danz.

Leaders Pleased

American Legion and drum corps leaders point with exceptional pride at the note for they explained that a man of Danz' knowledge of music held full realization of the value of the type of music required of a drum and bugle corps to make such a group an outstanding organization. "The music they play," officials explained, "is much more difficult than the ordinary band music because of the 'skip-note' nature of the bugles. Persons like Danz, who really know music, are in an excellent position to comment on performances."

Parishioners Hold Pastor In Church

VULCAN, Mich., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Two hundred parishioners of St. Barbara's Catholic church cautiously patrolled the parish rectory today to prevent their pastor, the Rev. Simon Borkowski, from leaving to take an assignment in another parish.

They have been picketing the church grounds in shifts for almost two days and thus far have blocked a transfer order which Father Borkowski received last week from his superiors. He had been scheduled to report yesterday to the Salvatorian seminary at St. Nazianz, Wis.

Campaign Aimed At Young Drivers

LAPORTE, Ind., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Municipal Judge Joseph Daley, 14, a high school junior and a trifle self-conscious of his judicial powers, ordered a city wide campaign today against juvenile traffic violators. He promised "maximum sentences" for those he finds guilty.

"They'll get what's coming to them. The kids around this town have been pretty careless," he said. Mayor Alban Smith appointed Daley to preside at a special municipal court branch which will handle cases of boys and girls who have violated the traffic code while riding bicycles.

Smith appointed Fred Dunham, 12, an eighth grade student, prosecutor. The boys will not be placed on the city payroll.

SANITY TRIAL OPENS SEPT. 6

Carley Calhoun, 28-year-old slayer of his 30-year-old stepfather, Clyde Dillinger, will have a jury trial on the question of his sanity September 6, Superior Judge James L. Allen decided today.

Twice Berserk. The mental examination of Calhoun was ordered after he twice went berserk in county jail, scratching and biting his cellmates before being overpowered.

Assistant District Attorney Preston Turner today requested appointment of Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, Los Angeles, famous alienist of the Hickman, Ruth Brown Judd, and Mosses cases, as medical expert for the state. The defense also will select an alienist.

WARREN VISITS S. A.

U. S. AIR CORPS TOP IN 1940

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U. S. army air corps at a cost of hundreds of millions of dollars, will be the most modern and powerful military striking force in the world by 1940, according to the consensus of foreign military observers here.

By June 30, 1940, the army is scheduled to have a total of 2,550 "first line" fighting and bombing planes. In addition there will be more than 700 other planes of the "second line" that could be advantageously pressed into service in an emergency.

One of the outstanding features of the "first line" division will be its inclusion of at least 52 "flying fortresses" of the type which recently made a record one stop mass flight from Miami, Fla., to Buenos Aires—5,260 miles in 27 hours and 50 minutes flying time. These streamlined, all-metal monoplane, with a gross weight of more than 20 tons, a wing span of 105 feet and length of 70 feet, have established themselves as one of the most important cogs in the American defense machine. Military observers believe they are superior to any bombing planes possessed by foreign powers. They are powered by four 1,000-horsepower Wright "Cyclone" engines.

Super-Ship Envisioned
The army is experimenting with a much more powerful bomber than the "flying fortress," known as the "super-flying fortress," but has not yet put it into production. Experiments have shown that the latter type—said to be the most powerful military plane ever constructed—needs some changes, but generally has proved satisfactory and will be produced in increasing numbers next year.

The war department recently placed an order for 13 additional "flying fortresses," of the B-17 type. Thirteen of these ships were delivered to the army in 1937 and 26 more are in process of production, with deliveries scheduled to begin early in 1939. Delivery of the 13 additional fortresses just ordered will follow completion of the present order of 26. The entire fleet is expected to be completed early in 1940.

However, in view of their outstanding performance on one flight to and return from Buenos Aires and many recent transcontinental flights, it is considered likely that President Roosevelt may ask the next session of congress for funds to increase the "fortress" fleet above 52.

Hughes Flight Significant
The recent record-breaking round-the-world flight of Howard W. Hughes, millionaire sportsman, may have an important influence on future military airplanes. Aeronautical information obtained by Hughes on that flight was made available to the war and navy departments and is expected to prove highly valuable.

The sportsman-aviator's "flying laboratory" was equipped with navigating, direction-finding and other instruments which had never before been thoroughly tested. Also there were certain mechanical features of Hughes' plane that were completely new and may be incorporated in military bombing plane designs.

At present the army is giving special attention to a new type plane known as the "Alcanda," which is propelled by two "pusher" engines. The "Alcanda," although heavily armed with machine guns, is capable of tremendous speed—exceeding 300 miles an hour—and is said to be able to overtake any bombing plane now built.

A plane similar to the "Alcanda" is being thoroughly tested for stratospheric flying. This ship has a sealed cabin and, when perfected, probably will have a speed of nearly 400 miles an hour.

Power Station Is Built Underground

ROME (UP)—Europe's largest electric power station is being built beneath Mount Castello in the Lake Garda region of Italy. The power house, it is announced, has been built underground owing to its nearness to the frontier. Experts assert that no bombing from the air can damage it or impair its efficiency.

A huge underground gallery has been completed by 3000 workers, who hewed 55,000 cubic yards of rock out of the Alps.

Note In Bottle Down 3 Rivers For 1,000 Miles

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—A note sealed in a bottle and tossed into the Cumberland river has started a friendship between two boys more than 1,000 miles apart. It began a year ago when Carl S. McMurray, Jr., sealed three identical notes in three bottles and dropped them off the Woodland street bridge here into the Cumberland river. The notes requested their finders to communicate with McMurray. The bottles drifted down the river with the current. One of them navigated the Cumberland to the Ohio and finally went down the Mississippi until it was washed ashore on the west bank of the stream at Plaquemine, La. There it was picked up by Percy Herbert, who unsealed the bottle and answered the note. Now the boys have struck up a friendship by exchanging letters. They hope to arrange a meeting some day. McMurray isn't sure he'll hear

WATERMELON CELESTE

--It's Somethin'!

By Julia Lee Wright
Director, Safeway Homemakers' Bureau

I discovered it on my vacation this summer --the grandest flavored fruit dessert I've ever tasted. It was made from fresh picked fruits and was served right out of the refrigerator at a bridge luncheon my hostess gave at her charming farm home. Here's my sketch of it:

First, the half watermelon is spooned out, leaving about 1/2 inch of pink meat. Seed the scooped-out pieces and put about 3/4 back in shell. Then mass arrangements of fresh fruits for best color contrast. Chill thoroughly and serve as is or with powdered sugar.

Fresh pineapple, blackberries, raspberries or other fruits in season can be used just as well. The important thing is that you have fresh picked full-flavored fruits. With ordinary fruit, it is just another fruit dish.

All of which I proved the other day in a test made for our Safeway produce buyer and several fruit growers. I tried this dessert in two ways; first, with ordinary store fruit, and then with fruit that had been kept "farm-fresh" in our revolutionary new Safeway fruit and produce handling depot. You should have heard those grown-up men rave about the melon filled with our farm-fresh fruit--the difference was that noticeable.

All our fresh fruit and vegetables are now brought to you farm-fresh through Safeway's revolutionary handling method

S. F. WAREHOUSES CLOSED

CIO STRIKERS IN DEADLOCK

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. — (UP)—Twenty-nine large warehouses were closed down today and employers were at an impasse with C. I. O. warehousemen after peace negotiations collapsed.

A freight car from the F. W. Woolworth company was being moved from warehouse to warehouse, seeking workmen to unload it. At each plant employers would order their men to unload it, the men would refuse and the warehouse would be closed.

Symbol of Issue
The test car was a symbol of the issue between the San Francisco Distributors' Association and the international longshoremen's and warehousemen's union. The union said the car had been loaded by plant breakers at the Woolworth plant while employers contended the warehouse manager had loaded it himself.

The employers' committee of 43 and a delegation from the C. I. O. acting as mediators between the two factions, failed to reach any approach to peace in the strike.

Offer Rejected
Employers proposed that the men go back to work pending negotiation of wage, vacation and other clauses for contracts which have expired. The union rejected this offer and countered with a suggestion that the Woolworth strike, involving wage raises totaling $12 a day, be arbitrated. The employers refused this proposal and the meeting adjourned without setting a date for resumption of discussions.

Promptly the freight car was sent on its rounds again, moving to the S. & W. grocery warehouse in Oakland. Twelve warehousemen there were asked to unload the school supplies in the car. They refused, were paid off and the plant closed down.

President Eugene Paton of the warehousemen's union accused employers of trying to smash the union and set up open shop in San Francisco.

"We accept this challenge," Paton remarked.

Play Spot Entrepreneur Makes Bonanza Of Back Yard

Jimmy Fede, Newark, N. J., had shown ministering to several of his younger patrons, is coining money these days as a playground proprietor. Jimmy charges his 25 customers 10 cents each for the right to play in his back yard, and throws in a snack of hot corn, bologna, and cheese sandwiches, and soda. No roughhouse stuff goes in Jimmy's resort (his ma frowns on it), so he teaches the boys fencing, makes the girls bring their sewing. Jimmy says rising food costs may force him to increase the fee to 15 cents, in which case he will add meat balls and spaghetti to the menu.

S. A. Couple Home From Long Trip

An enjoyable five weeks' automobile trip, which took them through Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and two provinces of Canada was being related to friends today by Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Bardwell, of East Seventeenth street, following completion of the 6000-mile trek by the pair yesterday. The Santa Ana couple visited Glacier National park, Banff park and Lake Louise, the latter two in Canada, during their long travels. The trip took them through Alberta and Saskatchewan, Canada. Relatives were visited in between Saskatoon and Regina in Saskatchewan, Greeley, Sterling and Denver, Colo., before resuming their journey back to Santa Ana. Lake Louise in Canada was announced by the Bardwells as the most beautiful spot of the entire trip.

FEAR LOSS OF S. A. FACTORY

Possibility that Santa Ana may lose her largest single industrial plant, that of the Food Machinery corporation, today sent chamber of commerce and city officials into action in an effort to prevent the loss.

Officials of the food machinery corporation announced that they are planning a consolidation of the Santa Ana and Riverside plants but could not say definitely which city would be headquarters for the consolidated plant. However, they hinted Riverside was being given much consideration.

Special Meeting
The board of directors of the chamber of commerce, headed by Fred Merker, Mayor Fred C. Rowland and Ernest Layton were among those who joined today in a special meeting at the chamber of commerce to lay plans which may lead to bringing of the consolidated plant here. The local plant was considered about normal capacity.

Construction Of Bridge Started

LOS BANOS, Cal., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Construction was under way today on a new 470-foot bridge across the San Joaquin river on the Pacheco Pass highway 17 miles east of here.

The new structure will be built 175 feet north of the old site to replace a bridge that collapsed last summer under the weight of a heavy truck and later was filled in.

The bridge will be made of reinforced concrete. No overhead structure will be used. It is scheduled to be completed in nine months.

SUIT INVOLVES CAFE BUSINESS

The cafe business in Fullerton today was subject of a suit for $5000 damages and an injunction, brought by A. Gregory, owner, and Ruth and Otho Myers, lessees, of one cafe, against Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Hughes, former operators of the same cafe, now alleged to have entered into competition.

The plaintiffs charge that Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have violated an agreement made when they gave up management of the plaintiffs' cafe, not to re-enter the cafe business within ten miles of Fullerton for a period of ten years.

Tells of Lease
Gregory, according to the complaint on file, originally leased the cafe in a Fullerton theater building, variously known as El Patio, the Hughes cafe, and by other names, to Mr. and Mrs. Hughes June 1, 1935. On May 17, 1937, the defendants leased it to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Johnson, at which time the defendants assertedly signed the agreement with Gregory not to re-enter the business in Fullerton for a decade.

The Johnsons operated the cafe from June 1, 1937, to November 9, 1937, then being succeeded by Mr. and Mrs. Myers, who operated the business to last February 9, when they assigned to Edna Ross. She operated the cafe until July 14, then Mr. and Mrs. Myers resumed management.

Last April 1, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes re-entered the cafe business in Fullerton, plaintiffs state.

Exam For Police Matron's Job Set

Tomorrow noon is the deadline for applications for the position of police matron, according to an announcement today by Phil M. Brown, secretary of the Santa Ana Civil Service commission.

Applicants for the $104.50 per month job should file notice with City Auditor Lloyd Banks at the city hall.

Only women between the ages of 21 and 31 will be considered eligible for the post. Other qualifications include a high school educational, a practical knowledge of typing reports and a year's experience in social welfare work or some similar position.

STATE WIDENS BUSINESS ROLE

By RICHARD WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
MANILA, (UP)—In a determined effort to adjust the nation's economy to alleviate its 80 per cent dependence on duty-free American markets, the Philippine Commonwealth is pioneering in the development of industries that private capital has ignored.

Going a long step farther toward "putting government into business" than any administration in the United States has ever attempted, the Commonwealth government of President Manuel L. Quezon frankly hopes to net fair profits from its ventures.

Government ownership and operation of commercial enterprises is not a new step in the Philippines. Under the American administration which preceded the Commonwealth established in 1935 under the independence act, the government for years owned and operated the leading railroad, bus lines, the Manila hotel, largest in the islands, and the Cebu Portland Cement Co. These projects have netted substantial profits.

Must Create Industries

President Quezon's government, which is scheduled to become completely independent in 1946, faces the task of creating local industries against the day when it must stand alone in the family of nations.

The "government into business" drive is being handled by the National Development company, an amply financed governmentally owned corporation.

One of the latest projects of the company is the establishment of a cotton textile mill. Spinning, weaving and finishing machinery have been ordered from the United States and the manufacture of textile goods is expected to begin by the close of 1938. At present, the sizeable Philippine market for textiles is supplied by Japan and the United States. Philippine imports of American textiles approximate $8,000,000 square meters monthly.

In the field of mining, the NDC has decided to develop coal and iron deposits with a view ultimately to develop domestic smelting. Several months ago, President Quezon turned down an attractive offer from Japanese interests eager to develop the Commonwealth's iron deposits.

Fish Cannery Next

During the past year, the NDC has received $10,000,000 from the Commonwealth treasury for industrial surveys, establishment of a food cannery and a can factory. At the present time, it is acquiring 7,500 acres of fishponds with a view to establishing a fish cannery.

In contrast to the protests sometimes voiced in the United States against the Federal government entering the domain of private business, Philippine business men favor the Commonwealth's program. Even pioneer American businessmen in the islands endorse the step as holding large potential benefits for Filipinos.

An American Institution Passes

Many a wide-eyed tourist has been toted up Pike's Peak on the famous cog railroad, with tilted steam locomotive, like that in the photo, furnishing the power. But streamlining has caught up with the Rockies and the old engines have given way to three very modernistic, 50-passenger cars, like that in top picture. One of the old-time engines, which have been used for 50 years, will be placed atop Cheyenne Mountain, facing the Peak, as a monument.

SEAL BEACH COUNCIL SEEKS BRIDGE, AUDITORIUM FUNDS

SEAL BEACH, Aug. 19.—The city council last night instructed City Attorney Burr Brown to make application for a federal loan and grant for the construction of a new bridge over Anaheim Bay channel and for the erection of a municipal auditorium or recreation center on the proposed public park area now under construction.

Acquisition of the proposed park area, which includes two full blocks adjacent to the proposed $100,000 pier approach, moved slightly closer when a resolution authorizing Mayor Elmer J. Hughes and City Clerk Ollie B. Padrick to sign an option to purchase the tract for $75,000 was adopted. By terms of the option the block west of the pier approach will be maintained as a park and the block east of the approach will be maintained as a park until such time as the city wishes to construct a building. The option will run from 30 to 180 days.

May Changes Status

That the $6,960 reduction of the assessed valuation of the steam generating plant located here, property of the Bureau of Water and Power of the City of Los Angeles, advised by the State Board of Equalization, may be an entering wedge to change the status of the plant assessment, appeared in informal discussion to be the reason why City Assessor C. A. Miller was not instructed to strike the amount from his assessment roll.

Reports of the state board, upholding the city's assessment, with the exception of the $6,960 set as the value of steel and concrete towers on the power plant property, were received and filed only. City officials plan conference with county officials before further action is taken.

Wages Increased

City employees received a boost in wages, ranging from a 25 monthly increase to the volunteer fire department which gives them $75 a month, $5 a day for life guards, to day laborers who will now receive 60 cents an hour. Pay scale for day laborers, and a $150 a month salary for the newly created job of street, sewer, water, electrical and plumbing inspector were set in an ordinance adopted last night.

Yesterday, The Great Pierre, magician, joins the guest list. Then Wilton Ames drives up.

CHAPTER XI

WILTON AMES seemed in a most affable frame of mind. As he parked his car, he glanced with some suspicion at the Great Pierre's combination car-and-trailer. But his face was pleasantly blank when he greeted Sally and Kinks.

"What's this?" he asked. "More business?"

"It certainly is," said Sally. "We've got a magician with us now, Wilton. Also a couple of gangsters." She spoke carelessly, as if she'd devoted the better part of her life to operating a rendezvous for gangsters.

Wilton glanced nervously about. "Gangsters?" he repeated incredulously.

"Yes," said Sally. "They've gone inside or I'd introduce you. They're very good paying guests, Wilton, so please don't spread the news around. We don't want the police visiting us."

"I won't say a word," Wilton promised.

He meant it sincerely. Wilton Ames had come this afternoon to establish himself on a more friendly footing with Sally and Kinks. For the past few days he had been carefully considering his part in the program to get possession of the Preston property. And he realized that, having persuaded Sally to invest in Great Divide Copper, he was in deep. If, through some unforeseen slip-up, Sally should ever find out his father's purpose and his own complicity, zip would go his chances of marrying her.

"I've come about this mortgage payment," he said now. "It's been on my mind lately. And I'm... well, I realize the position my father has to take, but I'm all against him even so."

"Well," said Wilton, "I've given the matter a great deal of thought. And the other day I went to my father and put it straight up to him about extending the time of your payment. As I expected, he wouldn't listen."

Sally's eyes grew suddenly soft. "But, Wilton," she said, "it was very sweet of you to try, anyway. Wasn't it, Kinks?"

"Eh?" said Kinks. "Oh, sure. Sure."

Wilton waved his hand. "It was the least I could do. And I'm sorry I didn't get to first base. But I refuse to admit defeat yet. I think we all ought to go and see him. This afternoon."

Some of the members plan to attend the Southern California Veterans' association encampment at the Pacific Palisades September 20 to September 30. The president was chosen to represent the Fullerton unit at the national convention of the Woman's Relief corps in Des Moines, Iowa.

The next meeting of the corps will be an all day pot luck and will be on the first of September at the hall, with Mrs. Jennie Swoap and Mrs. Charles Ferguson heading the kitchen committee.

Program Planned By Club Members

Other guests were Franklin D. West, candidate for superior court judge in department No. 2, Dixon W. Tubbs and J. Wildman, of Santa Ana.

The club voted to invite the Huntington Beach Lions club to a duck dinner at the woman's clubhouse August 31. Those planning to attend the meeting at Huntington Beach Thursday evening and extend the invitation are Dick Haster, president; H. A. Lake, Cleve Johnson, H. Clay Kellogg, Jack W. Crill, Dr. John Kraushaar, Claire Head and Charles Simpson.

Spencer Ames

"Gang up on him, eh?" Kinks said.

"That's it," Wilton turned friendly eyes upon him. "Naturally, being his son, I'm the last person in the world able to influence my father. But you two might have better success. And I'll go along for whatever good it may do. Now I happen to know that he isn't very busy this afternoon. It's as good a time as any to tackle him."

"I'm for it," said Sally decisively. "Kinks, you get my car out. I'll run in and tell Mrs. Clipstack to look after the people."

There was surprise in Mr. Spencer Ames' pale, blue eyes as Miss Sally Pennington swept into his office, followed by his son and a young man whom he had not met. He was perfectly aware that the young man was Kinkaid Parker. But he acknowledged Wilton's introduction without admitting the fact.

"Well," he said, waving them into chairs. "I know why you've come, of course. Wilton's been at me about the same thing. And I feel bound to tell you at the outset what I told him. I can't do a thing for you."

"Now, look here, Mr. Ames," said Sally. "We've got the best reason in the world for asking for a short extension. We're doing business over there. I'll admit that when Ki—er—Mr. Parker got the idea of running a sort of inn, I thought he was crazy. But he wasn't as crazy as he sounded. We're getting people. And in a few weeks we can pay off that note. Or a great part of it, at least."

Spencer Ames rubbed his chin. "I have no doubt, Miss Pennington," he said, "that all you say is true. But a bank is not a charitable institution. We can't do business by—by employing slack methods."

"But, Mr. Ames," said Sally Pennington desperately, "we simply can't raise $600 in the time that's left."

"I'm very sorry for you," said Spencer. "I have no object in causing you and Mr. Parker to lose the place. But I don't know what I can do."

Unexpectedly, Wilton Ames rose to his feet. He advanced to the desk and smote it with the flat of his hand.

"Well, I call it a dirty trick," he cried. "Sally and Parker have made a real effort to keep their property. And just because a board of directors who look like a bunch of stuffed owls are pressing you a little, you give in. Believe me, I'd soon tell those directors where to get off."

SALLY looked at him wonderingly. It was the finest burst of emotion that she had ever seen Wilton put on. But Spencer Ames' eyes simply bulged coldly, like the eyes of a dead fish.

"Wilton," he said, "sit down. You're only beginning in the banking business and you know next to nothing about it. I'll thank you to remember that I'm running this institution. And I repeat that I cannot extend the time of this payment."

Wilton subsided, glowering. The telephone rang suddenly.

"It's for you," said Spencer Ames, handing the instrument to Sally.

Sally spoke into it for two minutes, then replaced the receiver. "Oh, dear," she said, "it never rains, but it pours. That was Mrs. Clipstack, and someone else—a woman—wants to stay at the—Restaurateur. We'll have to go back right away, Kinks."

Spencer Ames bowed them out. "I'm sorry, Miss Pennington," he said. "If I could hold out any hope for you, I'd do it gladly. But I'm afraid I can't."

But when they were gone he sat down again and looked at Wilton.

"Well," he said, "we've had the little conference you thought necessary. I hope it does you some good with the young lady."

"Gee, Dad," said Wilton enthusiastically, "you were great. You played the cold-hearted banker to a T. Too bad you didn't go in for acting."

"You appear to have some little histrionic ability yourself," said Spencer Ames dryly.

NEW GERMICIDE TEST APPROVED

BERKELEY, Aug. 19.—An improved method of showing just what a number of the popular germicides, and others not so well known, will do in the presence of those organisms which cause typhoid and others which cause lesser complaints, has just been announced by the department of bacteriology of the University of California. The method is proposed by Dr. J. Salle, assistant professor of bacteriology, and his assistants, W. A. McOrrie and L. L. Shechmeister.

Relative Efficiency

The test was to determine the relative efficiency of germicides used to kill bacteria in the presence of the living tissue. The method compares the action of the germicides on the growth of living embryonic chick tissue as well as for their effect on the growth of the bacteria used in the tests. A number known as the toxicity index may be determined, which is defined as the ratio of the least amount of disinfectant showing no growth of the embryonic tissue in ten minutes to the least amount required to kill the test bacteria in the same period of time. Theoretically an index of one means that the germicide shows the same degree of toxicity to tissue and bacteria. An index less than one means that the germicide is more toxic to bacteria than to tissue. The smaller the index, the more nearly perfect the germicidal agent. While it is not claimed that actual conditions are duplicated, it is believed that the procedure approaches nearer an ideal in vitro than any other thus far reported.

Method of Testing

The compounds were tested against the organisms Staphylococcus aureus, and Etherella typhosa. The first is the common pus producing organism found in pimples, boils, abscesses, carbuncles, etc. The second is the causative organism of typhoid fever in man. These two organisms have been used probably more than any others in testing germicidal substances. Azochloramid, iodine, hexylresorcinol and metapen ranked highest in their ability to destroy the above named organisms in the presence of living tissue. Mercurochrome and merthiolate proved to be the least efficient of the compounds tested. A number of silver preparations, such as silver nitrate, silver citrate, silver lactate, protargol, argyn, cargentos, silvol and solargentum, gave figures intermediate between the other two groups. The silver compounds are very unstable in solution and must be freshly prepared. This is a decided disadvantage to their use. Iodine ranked at the top as a germ destroyer for general use. Of the newer organic compounds tested, azochloramid and hexylresorcinol are particularly valuable because of their high efficiency against both type of organisms in contact with living tissue. Azochloramid tested the highest of any compounds in destroying the organism of typhoid fever. Merthiolate and mercurochrome cannot be relied upon to kill Staphylococcus aureus by this method, but they rate considerably better in destroying the organism of typhoid fever.

ANNUAL RACE WEEK PROGRAM OPENS AUG. 22

MANY YACHTS TO TAKE PART

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 19.—Racing yachts from over the west are pointing this week for Newport harbor and the second annual race week program August 22-23. That the record participating fleet of 165 yachts which raced in the 1937 initial Race week will be eclipsed, was the prediction today by Commodore Shirley Meserve of the Newport Harbor Yacht club.

General chairman of large boat racing will be James Webster. The small boat contests, conducted under aegis of Balboa Yacht club, will be directed by Harry B. Stewart. $2500 Cleared By Laguna Festival

The substantial balance over all expenses is considered especially gratifying, in view of the fact that, prior to opening, a grant of $180 was made by city council, to take care of street decorations for the festival.

"GOVERNMENT TOO SLOW," SO GROWERS SELL PEACH CROPS

GRIDLEY, Cal., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Faced with ripening fruit falling to the ground, virtually all growers of the rich "peach bowl" district have sold their crop for $7.50 per ton rather than wait for federal action to buy surplus fruit, Ray B. Wiser, president of the California farm bureau federation, revealed today.

Wiser said buyers for canners moved rapidly through the Gridley area yesterday and bought up virtually all peaches. Previously, the federal surplus commodities corporation approved a plan to buy 7,500 tons of dried peaches for eastern relief purposes.

"Just Too Slow"
Wiser said he doubted there would be any peaches left for the federal agency to buy, for he knew of no growers near Gridley who had not sold and only a few in the Marysville-Yuba City district. "It was simply a case of the government being too slow," Wiser said. "If it had stepped in at the right time, the industry would have been stabilized and the surplus carryover kept until next year."

The peach market collapsed when the industry failed to approve a marketing control program offered by the department of agriculture. Wiser said he understood growers in the San Joaquin valley received an average of $12.50 per ton for peaches.

NINE JUSTICES GO ON BALLOT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Headed by William H. Waste, presiding justice of the state supreme court, nine of California's highest justices seeking reelection were announced as qualified for the November ballot today by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

The justices will run without opposition for the first time this year. A new judiciary election law provides that the names of incumbents appear alone with voters to designate only yes or no. If negative votes outnumber the affirmative total, the governor appoints a new justice.

Gov. Frank Merriam has until Sept. 26 to nominate a candidate to take the place on the ballot of Justice D. A. Cashion of the first district appellate court in San Francisco, who automatically retired from the bench by failing to file nomination petitions, Jordan said.

Indoors... Outdoors... Wash-day... Birthday... family history is being made.

NOT long ago a young friend of mine married. He is a camera fan, like the rest of us, and he told me:

"My family history is going to be kept in pictures. I plan to take at least one roll of pictures a week—many more whenever possible. Whenever we do anything—move to a new house—go on a week-end trip—plant flowers—celebrate a birthday or an anniversary—add a new member—whatever it is, the story will be told in pictures."

His plans go further than that, too. His picture record is to be kept in handy, useful form. "There will be a new picture book for every year," he told me. "I plan to have the best shots enlarged, and mount the others contact size. Everything goes into the book, where we'll always be able to find it and recall from our own snapshots—what we did in past days."

There, now, is an idea for all of us. In every family, things happen each day that we would like to remember. We buy new furniture, plant gardens, build a trellis for roses, put new screens on the back porch, take vacation trips. Children are born, grow up, change year by year. We change, too. And a true day-by-day picture-history of all our everyday activities, as well as activities not so everyday, would greatly enrich our memories in later years.

Let's make a mental note—make

Each family picture-book becomes more treasured as the years roll by.

It is a household ritual, and abide by it. "A picture a day keeps the family history up to date. And a complete picture-book each year keeps it permanently."

John van Guilder.

MEMBERSHIP GAIN REVEALED IN FRUIT GROWERS' REPORT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—A net gain in membership of 5660 acres during the year ended May 31 was reported to the board of directors of the California Fruit Growers' exchange today by F. F. Heydenfeldt, manager of the Growers' Service department. Gains included two associations and many individual growers previously marketing outside the Exchange, as well as young acreage.

"During periods of low prices, when a few cents per box is a big factor, growers become more conscious of the better total net return the exchange is able to make," Heydenfeldt said.

The El Camino Citrus association, pioneer co-operative group at Claremont, resumed its marketing affiliation with the exchange after three seasons outside, and the Southern Citrus association, Redlands, a newly organized group, was the second addition to the list of Sunkist shippers during the membership year.

Heydenfeldt reported an increase in the average number of calls per day by exchange membership representatives and a lower cost per call compared to the previous year.

Although actual percentages of shipments of each variety marketed through the exchange will not be known until the end of the fiscal year, October 31, percentages to date are well in line with last season, when 79.6 per cent of the packed citrus movement from California and Arizona were marketed by the exchange, it was stated.

Mother-In-Law Is Blamed for Rift

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—(UP)—His wealthy mother-in-law broke up his home and caused a separation between himself and his wife, Charles P. Link of Pasadena, oil lease dealer, charged today in filing suit for $200,000 for alienation of affections against Mrs. Amber Collins Massie of Dallas.

His wife, Adonell Massie Link is said to be in Europe. Link and his wife were married March 26, 1935, and he charged Mrs. Massie interfered in her daughter's domestic affairs until she abandoned him last June 20. He added that Mrs. Massie induced her daughter to go to Dallas to bring suit for divorce.

Miss Baker Honor Guest At Shower

LA HABRA, Aug. 19.—Miss Fay Baker, whose wedding will take place August 20, was guest of honor Wednesday evening when Mrs. Leonard George entertained with a miscellaneous bridal shower. Games were played during the evening and prizes awarded to Louise Carson, first, and Mrs. M. A. Stearnman, low. Refreshments were served late in the evening. Colored balloons were used in decorating and at intervals during the evening the honoree was given a dart with which to break a balloon. When the balloon was broken each time a verse on a tiny slip of paper revealed the place where a gift would be found. Invited guests were Mrs. M. A. Stearnman, Mrs. Dewey Carson, Miss Louise Carson, Mrs. Emmet Cook, Mrs. George Twadell, Mrs. J. A. Sigmund, Mrs. Peter Stone-brook, Mrs. M. J. Reynolds, Mrs. Sam Cook, Mrs. Gordon Sparks, all of La Habra; Mrs. Jess Scribner of Fullerton; Mrs. Leslie Baker, Miss Hollis Baker, Mrs. John Dunavant and Mrs. James Twadell, of Whittier.

FAIR TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

POMONA, Aug. 19. — Poultry, pigeons and rabbits at Los Angeles County Fair which opens in Pomona, Sept. 16 and continues through Oct. 2, will be housed in a huge new steel and concrete exhibit building just finished. The entire structure will be given over to the three departments. Last fall, because of a last minute influx of entries, it was necessary to crowd the coops somewhat especially in the poultry department. This year the additional buildings will eliminate all this.

Following the custom of the past few seasons, the Poultry show will occupy the building during the first nine days from Sept. 16 to Sept. 24, while the pigeons and rabbits will hold forth at the same time during the last eight days. Again this year John Ashcroft and Charley Gage will superintend the poultry show. A. W. Fowkes, veteran superintendent of the pigeon show, will again be at the helm this year. R. W. Farr who has been so successful with the rabbit show during the past several seasons has consented to take over the job once more.

Outlook Optimistic
After a careful survey of the possibilities, each superintendent is enthusiastic with the outlook for the greatest small stock show in the history of the exposition. Once again the pigeon show will be the largest in the nation in the point of entries, according to Supt. Fawkes. Last year it was necessary because of lack of space to turn several poultry entries back. This year there will be no need for that and with practically unlimited accommodations, there is every indication that a new high mark will be reached. With his enviable record, Mr. Farr has already had assurance of sufficient number of entries to assure an exceptional show.

Last season the fair attendance set a new record of 650,000 and it is safe to say that by far the greater number of these attended the small stock exposition. This year preparations are being made by fair officials to handle 100,000 more. Fifty acres have been added to the exposition park, making the total area 300 acres. Besides the poultry building there are twelve other fair buildings included in the development program, and all will be ready for this fall.

"Humane Bits"

By FLORENCE A. ROBINSON

I guess there aren't many folks that aren't acquainted with "Napoleon" Uncle Elby's dog of funny picture fame.

Well, Napoleon is a real dog belonging to George McManus, creator of the Napoleon and Uncle Elby's sheet, and we had the privilege of meeting this engaging animal while up at Big Bear. He is a guest at Mable Shipman's "Dude Ranch for Dogs," which I told you a bit about; and he looked just as amiable, even though a bit droopsnootyish, as he does each Sunday morning with our cup of coffee.

Napoleon was at the ranch principally to get rid of some deep circles that he had acquired around his eyes while making a movie. Kleig eyes is the proper name, but they looked like the old morning after circles to me. And too, he needed a bit of building up after his strenuous movie career, and if you please he rated a de luxe malted milk each evening, as well as a de luxe kennel.

The way Uncle Elby has been in training, and then to find Napoleon taking a rest cure among the clouds certainly makes one wonder just what those two really have been up to.

Wag dog is still disconsolate over returning to civilization after her two short weeks vacation, but perked up a bit this week when she found out that she was an auntie. Her sister, Dolly Griggs, pet of the Dale Griggs household, finally after five years of suppressed living made the grade and is now a proud "ma" to five wobbly puppies. Although a bit jealous Wag says she will just live to go on grinning and hearing her state of thwarted motherhood and adopt all the kittens coming her way.

Once when the family lived on Spurgeon street, she was nursemaid for a whole litter of kittens belonging to the Lee Kenyon children. After one round with the kitten mother, Wag's innate mother instincts won out and each afternoon she curled up with the kittens while mama strolled the primrose path.

One of the nicest persons I've met this summer is one of our marketeers, Elvin Milbrat, and the pleasant introduction occurred when Mr. Milbrat invited all the kids in town to bring their dogs to his new market for a show. It was great fun and earned more space and adjectives than I can supply. And nicest of all, Mr. Milbrat followed up his dog show with a membership in the Orange County Humane society.

Then not to be outdone, Ed Yost, his landlord, took out a membership too; as well as Scottie of "Scottie's Malt Shop." I really think that the latter did so for his own protection. You see, those foot-long hot dogs he does out over his counters have made folks wonder, and I've noticed that owners of dachshunds, especially, look the elongated edibles over with quite some interest. Now I'm wondering—

So They Made Their Pledge and Die Is Cast

Above are the Paramount starlets, Ruth Rogers and Helaine Moler, as they pledge attendance at the Aviators' Reunion and Ball which will be held early next month in connection with the National convention of the American Legion in Los Angeles. They made their pledges to Dudley Steele, chairman of the affair, one of the colorful features to be staged in conjunction with the nation-wide conclave.

"VISIBILITY ZERO!" SPURNED FOR GALA AVIATORS' REUNION

"Visibility zero!" will be strictly taboo when aviators from the entire country meet at The Palomar on the evening of September 20th at the aviators' reunion, banquet and ball, a feature of the 1938 American Legion national convention to be held in Los Angeles September 19-22, inclusive.

The high fliers will be needing all their wits for the sight, for as the highlight attraction of the evening, "Miss American Beauty" will be selected from among 100 finalists culled from a nationwide entry list of personable young women.

Notables All Invited
Douglass Corrigan, who "found" California in Ireland, Howard Hughes, round-the-world flier, and Eddie Rickenbacker, American World war ace, as well as heads of practically all aviation companies of the United States, air line presidents and dignitaries, and heads of the army, navy and marine services have been invited to attend the affair.

Jimmie Fidler in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, August 19.—Idol Chatter: Hope the information won't shatter any Hollywood homes, but tests prove that an actor's blood pressure soars approximately 25 points above normal during love scenes. Wish I could achieve the man-about-town air with which Mickey Rooney glances at his watch. Hollywoodites: a flower shop which deals exclusively in screw designs for Filmville's practical jokers. It's supposed to be a secret, but the Gloria Williams who is playing hits in Paramount pictures is the widow of the late Walter Heins.

Of-all-things note: Mae West does not approve of women who smoke! Pat Kelly could cash in $340 for each of the fifty pounds lost on her recent diet—she's been offered that much in testimonials. Bing Crosby claims that it's the HAT-size that makes so many Hollywood marriages CAP-size. Wonder if the difficulty M-G-M is having with "The Great Waltz" will teach producers the folly of hiring directors who speak no English?

Strange, but the Quints seem to be least admired by the people who have worked with them. News to me: that some of our best-tanned glamour girls get the effect by spraying themselves with tea. Joan Blondell will never argue about a screen role if it gives her a chance to wear a tricky hat. Yes, Hollywood is merely a section of Los Angeles—the comic section.

Levy's Cafe, more sedate and less publicized than its across-the-street rival, the Brown Derby, is an official gathering place for the industry's biggest executives—the men who can make and break stars at will. Today, lunching there, I happened on a little drama that was typically Hollywood. Into the cafe slipped a boy and a girl. They took a table near mine, ordered the cheapest sandwiches on the menu and then, as the waiter walked away, stepped out into the aisle and went into a tap-dance routine. They worked hard—but beyond a curious, pitying glance, no one paid them the least attention. After a moment, a woman who stood outside rapped on the cafe window and the two hopefuls, forestalling the arrival of their order, left the cafe as unobtrusively as they had entered. One more desperate hope had proven barren—and Levy's returned to its customary quiet.

Speaking of dancers, I am reminded of Sally Rand, currently starring in a "meller" entitled "Murder on Hollywood Boulevard." The other day, I managed to crash the set where her final scenes were being filmed. Sally, seemingly as unaware of the crowd on the set as though they were non-existent, wandered about in the scantiest costume ever seen outside of a nudist resort. And if her nonchalance was surprising, that of the crew was amazing. Not one man of the thirty or forty who worked on the set paid her the tribute of a glance unless it was called for by the job in hand. And I heard only one remark passed about her startling lack of clothes. Commenting on her radiant health, an electrician dryly observed that it might be due to her fondness for fresh air. Hollywood, at work, is less self-conscious than many of the would-be reformers who criticize it.

Driving into Hollywood this morning over Calumet Pass, I looked down on Hollywood and saw a strange natural phenomenon. Fog had drifted in from Santa Monica Bay and hung like a gray shroud over the hills which virtually surround Filmtown. A wall of fog blocked out the beach districts. Only the Boulevard section of Hollywood itself, was fog-free and there the sun shone brightly. Nothing ever typified the Hollywood psychology more forcibly than that streak of Nature. To the average Hollywoodite the rest of the world is always shrouded in fog.

I've known many stars so temperamental that visitors are barred from their sets—but here's an exclusion order with reverse English. Today, with a visitor from the East in tow, I was touring the Twentieth Century-Fox lot and applied for admittance to the stage where re-takes for "Hold That Co-ed" were being shot. The doorman stopped us. "Sorry," he said, "No one allowed on a set where Marjorie Weaver is working. It's front office orders. Work always stops while she visits!"

Chatting with Barbara Stanwyck when a fan magazine writer, looking for copy, interrupted to ask questions about the many physical injuries she has sustained since coming to pictures. "How many bones have you broken?" he demanded poised. "All of 'em but my right leg," retorted Barbara, grimly. "I had to save something for next year!"

BOND ELECTION FOR NEW J. C. LOOMS

DECISION TO BE MADE MONDAY

More than 100 representative citizens of Santa Ana last night indicated to the Board of Education their desire for a new junior college and in an oral vote requested the board and a citizens' committee to decide when and what action should be taken.

Members of the board and the committee will meet Monday night to make final decision regarding the proposed bond issue of approximately $1,000,000 which would be voted upon by the Santa Ana Junior college district before October 1.

$1,700,000 Total Cost

If present plans for the new junior college plant are used, the total cost of the plant will be $1,700,000, 45 per cent of which will be paid by federal grant under the Public Works Administration. Members of the board last night at the city hall meeting indicated that the proposed plant was favorable to them and that they were in favor of immediate action in calling a bond election.

Consensus of the entire group was favorable for the construction of a new junior college but the advisability of presenting a bond issue to the people was questioned by a number of citizens who spoke at the meeting.

Consider New Move

Following the meeting several members of the board stated to a Register reporter that, in the event that a bond issue was called and voted down, they would consider taking steps to convert the present Willard Junior high school into a junior college and making "other provisions" for Willard students. Chief difference of opinion expressed at the meeting last night was to the advisability of "hurry-up" action on the part of the board in calling for the bond election. The citizens' committee, appointed nearly a year ago, includes Alex Brownridge, A. N. Zerman, George Dunning and Plummer Bruns. This group was appointed at a meeting of representatives of various service clubs, civic organizations, and other organizations.

Whatever They Wish

The final motion to advise the board to make whatever plans they wished was made by Sam Hurwitz, local clothier, and was seconded by Mrs. Mae B. Geeting, past president of the League of Women's Voters.

Others who voiced opinion at the meeting included: Norris Stone, A. G. Green, H. T. Dunning, James Anderson, G. A. Allen, Maxwell Burke, Herb Allemen and John McCoy.

A motion by Green, seconded by Stone, to approve the attempt to float the bond issue was recalled after George Wells, president of the school board, expressed a desire against the motion.

Tom Engleman Wins Prize In U. S. Competition

Tom Engleman, 17-year-old Santa Ana high school graduate, continued his triumphs in the field of model airplane construction when it was learned yesterday that he had won second place and $50 in a national competition for the miniature crafts.

Tom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Urban J. Engleman, of 2459 Heliotrope drive, was awarded the prize yesterday by a committee of three technical advisors, Reginald Denny, sponsor of the competition and well known motion picture star; Howard Hughes, millionaire aviator and motion picture director; and Paul Mantz, aviation technical advisor for the motion picture industry. Judging of the entries was based on the design of the ships entered in contest which numbered more than 1000.

32-Inch Wing Span

Engleman's entry had a wing span of 32 inches and was 25 inches in length. He has been interested in aviation for the past several years and plans to take technical educational work following his graduation from Santa Ana Junior college where he is scheduled to enter this fall.

Last year Tom was awarded highest honors in an elimination contest in Los Angeles.

AUTO IS RECOVERED

DRIVERS ABSOLVED IN FATAL ACCIDENT

A jury in charge of Coroner Earl Abbey at Dixon funeral chapel, Huntington Beach, yesterday afternoon exonerated both drivers involved in an automobile accident which claimed the life of Dick Stewart, 12, of Bloomington, Tuesday morning in the beach city.

The jury blamed the accident on the fact that view of the intersection is obstructed by shrubbery. Dick was one of a family of four children who were riding with three other young persons in a car driven by Bob Harrington, 18, San Bernardino, when it collided with one operated by Walter H. Collins, 31, resident of Santa Ana but temporarily employed at the beach city.

DAYS OF "IRON HORSE" IN S. A. ARE RECALLED BY RETIREMENT

Early days of the "Iron Horse" in Santa Ana were recalled here today with the appointment of T. H. Sherrill as ticket agent for the Santa Fe office in the city to replace R. C. Short who has tendered his resignation after more than a half century of railroading.

Short, has been ticket agent in Santa Ana since 1912, and is now residing at 1012 Highland avenue.

Santa Ana for the past six years, has been with the Santa Fe for more than 40 years. Previous to that time he was general agent for the New York Central railroad in the Los Angeles office. He was ticket agent in Pomona and Upland before coming to Santa Ana.

Former S. A. Resident

The return of Sherrill brings back to Santa Ana a former resident of the city who at one time was telegraph operator in Santa Ana under H. B. Keeler, the first ticket agent for the Santa Fe in Santa Ana. Sherrill started in Santa Ana in 1905.

In 1918 Sherrill was transferred to Orange where he was stationed for the next six years. At that time he was again returned to Santa Ana and in 1934 was transferred to Whittier where he remained until the present time. At the time of Sherrill's start with the Santa Fe, the office headquarters were in a box car that preceded the construction of the line to San Diego. Claude D. Lindsey, who is present traveling passenger agent for the company in Orange county, was night telegraph operator when Sherrill started with the Santa Fe.

Betty Ann Tells How to Hitch-Hike With Dignity

WOODLAKE, Cal., Aug. 19. —(UP)—Betty Ann Funderbunk, blonde haired young lady from Greenville, Mississippi, today looked back on a 3,000 mile hitch-hiking trip and mused that she didn't have to expose a bit of her dimpled legs to obtain rides from passing motorists.

For Betty Ann, aged two, relied on her thumb all the way. Of course, she "brought along" her father who vowed that progress would have been much slower for him if it hadn't been for her.

"Only," he complained, "the motorists spoiled her with dainties. Now we have to bribe her to leave an automobile."

Boys look like college men!

here's our school wear policy:

We're taking up the cudgel for boys this year! We want to dress them up like college men! . . . and we'll guarantee that suits the boys!

We started out a year ago to get boys' wear makers to copy college styles for us . . . we put it across and you'll see the results in our stocks of boys' clothes for school this fall.

Right now we have Tweeduroy pants, In-and-Out Shirts, Bush Jackets, Pilot Coats, Covert Pants, Shoes, and other things that fit this policy.

If you boys and parents like this idea . . . stand by!

WAR ON BLACK SCALE MAPPED BY GROWERS IN LOCAL AREA

Orange growers of the county today are preparing for a fumigation war on black scale as a result of the rapid completion of the black scale hatch during the recent warm weather period, according to the bureau of pest control of the California Fruit Growers Exchange.

"Past experience would indicate that, under continued favorable weather, black scale in many of the advanced orchards in the area might be out of control within the next month," R. S. Woglum said.

Developing Rapidly

"Even in interior areas of single hatch scale, those which first emerged are developing rapidly in size. Everywhere it is obvious that there is a tendency toward black scale build-up this year," he stated.

"Such conditions demand early treatment if the most effective results are to be expected. Control activities are somewhat slow in getting under way."

Number in Order

"Comparatively few fumigation outfits are in action at the present time and little spraying has been done interior, although at the coast a number of outfits have been working for the past two or three weeks."

"Where summer fumigation against black scale is contemplated in the double-brooded areas of the county, it should be pressed without further delay if satisfactory results are to be expected," Woglum warned.

Clever Theme Prevails
At Party Marking
First Birthday

Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy inspired the clever party theme observed yesterday afternoon at the John Scripps home, 1920 Hollister Drive in celebration of the first birthday of little Miss Edith Scripps.

Mrs. Scripps welcomed an intimate group of young mothers and their children to the festive affair. Some of the boys and girls enjoyed a dip in the pool which is an interesting feature of the home gardens.

At refreshment time, Edith and her guests were seated at the long dining room table, where Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy dolls on a trestle table formed a centerpiece. Smaller creations of the two figures adorned the place-cards. Candelabrum birthday cake was served with other dainties.

Later in the afternoon while the mothers were having their refreshments, Mr. Scripps entertained the children in the garden. Motion pictures of the merry group were taken.

Edith received gifts from the guests, who included Mrs. Chester Horton and sons, Doug and Pete; Mrs. Albert Harvey and children, Jack and Alice; Mrs. Edmund West and son, Eddie; Mrs. Claude Brakebill and daughter, Claudia; Mrs. Alvin Stauffer and daughter, Shirley; Mrs. Ray Tarr and son, Frederick; Mrs. Charles McDaniel Jr. and son, Leese.

Parents' Association
Gives Picnic Dinner

Blackwell, president of the Parents' association, conducted a short business meeting. Mrs. Blackwell and Mrs. Les Phillips were aided by the social committee in carrying out plans for last night's event.

In advance of the dinner hour, many of the band members went to Orange city park for a swim in the plunge.

The Hoffs left Santa Ana to make their home in Hanford for a time 15 years ago, and it was then that they became acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Hedges, who had just arrived in the north from their native England.

Mixing Bowl
BY ANN MEREDITH

Recipes for a couple of super-elegant desserts aren't a bad thing to have in the office for Sunday and "company" dinners. Let me suggest one hot dessert to be made while dinner is cooking, and one cold dessert, made hours ahead of time, snugly awaiting dinner, in the refrigerator. The hot dessert is a delicate soufflé called:

Lemon Pudding

2 eggs, whites beaten stiff, yolks beaten with
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
Pinch of salt
Juice and grated rind of 1 1-2 lemons.

Beat egg yolks, sugar, salt and lemon juice until smooth and creamy. Stir in the milk and quickly cut and fold in beaten whites. Have a shallow pudding dish buttered, pour in pudding, place dish in a pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes in a 275 degree oven. Serve hot with thin cream.

Pineapple-Maraschino Soufflé

3 eggs, whites beaten stiff
2 tablespoons lemon juice and
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1-2 cup sugar and a pinch of salt
1-2 tablespoons gelatin, soaked in
1-4 cup cold water
2-3 vup grated pineapple and
1-2 cup sliced maraschino cherries with
1-4 cup of the juice
1 scant cup of cream, measured after whipping

Beat egg yolks, sugar, salt, lemon juice and rind; cook over hot water until of custard consistency. Remove from the fire and stir in the softened gelatin, the pineapple and sliced, whip the egg whites and whipped cream through the mixture, spoon into a water-rinsed mould and chill until serving time. Top with whipped cream and garnish with a cherry.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Mix all ingredients listed, let stand an hour, stir well and seal in clean hot pint jars. Add to cream sauces, use with mayonnaise for fish sauces, or in a sandwich filling.

CLUB TOLD OF LIE DETECTORS

ORANGE, Aug. 19.—With "Lie Detectors" as his subject, Judge Bayard H. Paine of Lincoln, Neb., was speaker at a meeting of the Orange Rotary club yesterday. Judge Paine was introduced by his cousin, W. W. Perry, and who served as program chairman. Bayard H. Paine Jr., also of Lincoln, was another guest. Frank Collins presided.

Third Degree Methods

Judge Paine is one of the supreme court judges of Nebraska and he stated that while third degree methods are used as lie detectors in the east, this brutal procedure is seldom used in the west, and in the east it is being replaced by more clever methods of finding out the truth.

He told of some police officers who stand a suspect against a wall and strike him across the Adams apple. This causes profuse bleeding and usually frightens the man so treated into a confession, he said.

The speaker said that the first and best lie detector is a wife. Other methods described were twilight sleep and psychological reactions to given words. In China, the speaker said, all suspects are given a mouthful of rice, with the one whose rice remains dry in his mouth being chosen as the guilty person.

New Method Described

Judge Paine described the lie detector which was used in questioning Corrigan on his return from Ireland. He expressed the opinion that this method of judging by heart beat and respiration as recorded on a machine, some day will be used in courts. It took three years to bring the X-ray into courts as evidence and 17 years for finger printing to be considered as court evidence, he declared.

Zeppelin Centenary
 Ferdinand, Count von Zeppelin, maker of rigid airships, was born a hundred years ago, and the two German air stamps issued to mark this centenary show respectively the Count in the gondola of one of his first airships, with a side elevation of the end of a modern Zeppelin gondola together with a side elevation of the latest type of German airship. The two elevations bring out well the contrast between the earliest and latest types of Zeppelin, due to the improvements made everywhere in the design.

Pictureque Breslau
 Another German series, issued in connection with the abbot's meeting which will still be in full swing at Breslau when this number of the Stamp Magazine appears, provides us with four attractive little views of that city. The subjects of the four designs are as follows:
 2 pf. A view of the oldest part of Breslau, the so-called "Dominsel" or island of the Cathedral.
 4 pf. The Hermann Goering Sports Camp, where the various events of the meeting will take place.
 12 pf. The fine old Gothic Town Hall, dating from the 14th and 16th centuries. This is a slightly different view from that which appears on the 15 pf. stamp of the 1931 charity set.
 15 pf. The Century Hall, inaugurated in 1913. Here exhibitions and fairs are customarily held. The collection, which also includes 10,000 foreign stamps from 88 countries belonging to the International Postal Union.

Presidential Series
 Dates of the first day sales of the postage stamps of the new regular series will be as follows, with the stamp date of sale and color:
 10c Tyler, Sept. 2, salmon.
 11c Polk, Sept. 8, blue.
 12c Taylor, Sept. 14, lavender.
 13c Fillmore, Sept. 22, green.
 14c Harding, Sept. 29, bicolor (black center and light green border).
 The first day sale on each of these new issues will be held at the Washington, D. C. post office, with general sale throughout the country following as soon thereafter as distribution will permit.

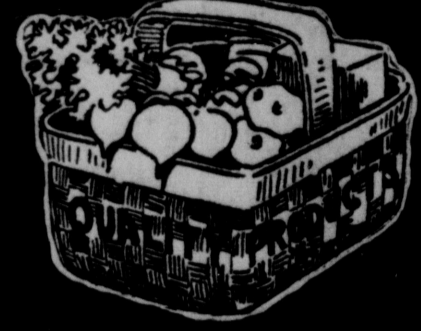

Burma Pictorial
 According to the Stamp Lover, four pictorial designs for the new Burma stamps have been decided upon. The selected designs show a Burmese Royal barge, a view of the Irrawaddy, a Burmese and a Burmese woman, and a Burmese temple. The stamps will be printed in Nankai, India, and are expected to be ready in November.

Two Air Stamps
 Two of the rarest air mail stamps were sold by Harner, Rooke & Co. last month. A copy of the U. S. A. 24 cents 1918 air mail stamp with center inverted design, sold for $275 while a copy of the General Babo Newfoundland stamp, 44½¢ overprinted on the 10 cent stamp realized $400.

Papua Jubilee Commemorative
 Papua will issue on the 6th of September, 1938, a series of commemorative air mail stamps on the occasion of the Jubilee of a declaration of Papua as a British Possession. The values will be 2d. (red), 5d. (blue), 10d. (green), 15d. (brown), and 20d. (purple).

Submarine Mail
 The Spanish Government announced that they will issue special postage stamps to frank letters carried by submarine. These stamps, however, will not be the usual type, but will be designed to be carried in the hull of a submarine. The stamps will be issued in the form of a small rectangular stamp, with a design of a submarine.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Aug. 19.—Nancy Walker attended a birthday party Tuesday in Long Beach given for her cousin, Winfield Scott, who was observing his fourth anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey, of Orange, former Westminister residents, called at the Harold Price home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rumbold, who have occupied the Elsworth Skinner house on Huntington Beach boulevard since their recent marriage, have moved to Bakersfield, where he has taken a position in the oil fields.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bono have rented their house on Eighteenth street, New Westminister, and have moved to Long Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Beaudette and two daughters are the new occupants of the Bono home.

A family party was entertained at the F. J. Grandy home, with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Grandy of Compton as overnight guests, while their daughters, Marlene and Lois, are remaining for a longer visit. Cousins from Pasadena, Mrs. Mollie Grandy, Miss Mabel Grandy and Mrs. Bert Col joined them for the day.

Miss Doris Hart, who spent the time of the festa at Santa Barbara and Friday evening played as a member of the Long Beach Women's Symphony orchestra, returned Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Bruce Palmer entertained as recent visitors, Mrs. Gertrude Kelley.

GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, Aug. 19.—House guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Virgin are the latter's sister, Mrs. A. F. Rucker, daughter Elizabeth, son, Ambrose, and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Scen, of Moberly, Mo.

Stanley Wheeler and Bob Shreve have left on a 10 day trip to Delta, Colo., where they will visit relatives of Mr. Wheeler. News of the death of her sister, Mrs. Susan Hough, and niece, Mrs. J. E. Smith, of Lincoln, Neb., was received this week by Mrs. Hattie 25 STORES Under One Roof To Serve You!

Our Children

CLINGING CHILDREN
Bobby and Ellen are five and three years old respectively. During the day they seem to get along nicely without too much attention from anybody. Once in a while they come into the house and ask if mother is there and go out again cheerfully, even though she is absent. But at night it is different. They have their baths; eat their supper; say their prayers and get into their beds. As mother leaves the room one of them calls, "Don't shut the door, Leave it so the light shines through." The door must be left slightly ajar or there is trouble, loud trouble. This has been going on for a long time and their mother is beginning to think that the door ought to be closed and the children left to work it out as best they can.

I think that closing the door is not important. I do not think that it is the crack of light in the doorway that they want at all. They have in their minds a feeling that as night comes upon them they are being cut off from all they are familiar with. Darkness wipes it out. As long as they have some connection with their daytime world they are safe. In their minds they are secure. If that crack which symbolizes for them their daytime world, goes out in darkness, they lose their hold and feel lost. Fear besets them and they cry for help. What we need to do is to teach and train them to know that they are safe day and night, always in touch with their familiar daytime world.

Shutting the door will not teach them that; will not give them the feeling of security they lack. We have to teach them that night is the absence of light from the sun, the time given children and all living things for sleep and rest and recreation for the next day. We have to teach them the beauty of the night, its restful sky set with stars, the beauty of the moon, the peace of it all. Teach them to love the night.

We cannot do this by saying, "There's nothing to be afraid of. Go to sleep. Nanny cannot stay with you all the time. Big boys go to bed and sleep until morning. Stop it now or you'll get a spanking." That will not teach the beauty of night and its peace and rest and serenity.

Take the children into the twilight and talk about the beauty of it. Listen to the birds going to bed, swinging on the tree branches, glad to snuggle down under the lovely sky and the lovely moonlight. If there is a garden, walk in it. Flowers are exquisite in moonlight. Listen to the water if there is a brook. Point out whatever of beauty there is about your home in the night and say no word about that crack of light in the door. Before the end of another year the children are likely to prefer moonlight on their floor to the crack of light in the doorway.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "Spelling," in which he tells parents how to successfully help children with their spelling lessons. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper, and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

REPORT SHOWS MIND PROGRESS

Establishing a new progress record on the San Jacinto tunnel of the Colorado River aqueduct, hard-rock crews of the Metropolitan Water district have blasted their way through more than three miles of solid granite during the past 12 months.

Activity Revealed
This was revealed today in construction progress reports received in the office of F. E. Weymouth, general manager and chief engineer of the district. Less than 4400 feet of the 13-mile tunnel now remains to be excavated, it was pointed out.

During the 12-month period since August 15, 1937, progress records reveal that the district's tunnel forces have penetrated 16,234 feet of granite formation in the heart of Mt. San Jacinto. Considering the number of headings from which the work progressed, the district forces made better progress during the past 12 months than during any similar period since work on the long tunnel was started, early in 1933, construction records revealed.

85 Per Cent Finished
The San Jacinto tunnel is one of the 38 aqueduct tunnels, aggregating 108 miles in length, and is the last one to be completed. The entire aqueduct project, district records indicate, is now more than 85 per cent finished.

46-Day Canoe Trip Is Completed

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Two former Los Angeles navy electricians were here today seeking work after a 46-day canoe "vacation trip" from Seattle to Juneau.

"It started out to be a vacation trip," said J. Jaderholm and Bert Hopkins, "but we wouldn't want to attempt it again."

The pair, who said they accepted no "lifts" during the long trip, lost 15 days in bad weather. They said the closest they came to disaster was when a bulky native maiden tried to leap into their frail craft from the Klemtu cannery dock.

Difficulty was also experienced in Seymour narrows off the coast of British Columbia when Hopkins' paddle snapped in a whirlpool. It cost the men $45 to make the trip.

CLASS SETS UP FAMILY GUIDES

CLEVELAND (UP)—How long should a couple know each other before marriage?
Greater Cleveland's answer to this and other related questions are revealed in a survey made by the Fenn College class in "family problems." Here are some of the answers:

A couple should know each other an average of 1.3 years before marriage.

Greater Clevelanders, as a whole, believe in distribution of birth control information by medical authority.

They advocate physical examinations before marriage.

Hints on How to Save
If a family's income were suddenly cut in half most of the people would act thusly:

Cut down on entertainment. Pay less rent.

Have the phone taken out.

Dispense with the automobile or restrict the wardrobe.

Purchase cheaper cuts of meat.

Call the children home from college or reduce charity and church contributions.

Most of the answers showed economical tendencies. They believed that a couple should have saved an average of $985 before marrying. A few, however, considered no financial reserves necessary.

The average saving of those married was $774.

Most parents do not advise corporal punishment for misbehaving children. They would rather deprive the children of some privilege.

Few Hasty Marriages
The majority of those interviewed who were married knew each other two or three years before marriage.

As for the importance of religious beliefs and family consent in considering marriage:

Religious opposites should not marry, according to the greater number of answers.

A slim majority consider parental consent preferable.

General sentiment was against "working wives."

This sentiment was waived, however, in cases in which the husband's income was inadequate and there were no children.

Fifty-eight per cent of the interviewees did not drink. It was pointed out that this could be attributed to the fact that most of those questioned belong to church groups.

The majority of single persons said they had not married because of economic reasons.

Willows Well Is Active Again

WILLOWS, Calif., Aug. 19.—(UP)—The Willard Well No. 1 which last winter created hopes of a major oil boom in this vicinity when it blew in with a volume of gas that swallowed a derick, became active again today.

The well, which sanded at 60 feet, was hurling mud and water 20 feet into the air from a area 100 feet in diameter.

Water pumping operations were under way at the location by the Ohio Oil company, owner of the property, when the second eruption happened.

BROTHERS FARM ON CO-OP PLAN

BURNSIDE, La. (UP)—The six Waguespack brothers follow socialist methods on their 1,300 acres.

Twenty years ago, they moved to a plantation here with little more than their personal possessions. Today there are 34 Waguespacks. They have a community of their own, a church, six tractors, a machine shop and 12 tenant families.

Each of the brothers is an expert on some operation about the plantation. Edgar, for instance, is the bookkeeper and financier. Octave is the rice expert. Wallace supervises the sugar cane crop. George and Frumence are mechanics and Clarence, the youngest, is general utility man.

They see nothing strange about their co-operative venture.

"We were raised to be farmers and farmers we are," George explained. "First we rented a little rice land over here, then we all moved in to fight the depression, with the particular aim of getting three meals a day. We get the three meals, but we're still fighting."

Most of their work is done with machinery. When a new plow or

Judges To Select Miss Norconian At Meeting Sunday

The judges for the final contest to select Miss Norconian Sunday will be representatives of the Whittier Daily News, Fullerton News-Tribune, Anaheim Bulletin, Santa Ana Register, and Pomona Progress-Bulletin. Rex B. Clark, owner of the Lake Norconian hotel and spa, today announced.

Among the many beautiful entrants who will appear and match charms for the title of Miss Norconian will be Miss Esther Ann Walker of Ontario, who took third place in the recent contest at Venice.

Miss California, winner of the Venice contest, will appear but she has refused to enter the Norconian contest, saying that her manager thought it best that she not appear again until she competes for the national crown in Atlantic City.

According to the hotel management, many stage and screen celebrities from Hollywood are expected to attend the final contest.

CHILD FEEDING EXPERTS SPEAK

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Two members of the Chicago Dental Research club, Doctors Lester Bryant and Austin James, were guests this week at the California Fruit Growers' Exchange weekly directors' meeting. This is the group that cooperated with the Exchange in the three-year child feeding study conducted a few years ago by the University of Chicago at Mooseheart.

Study Demonstrated
"This study demonstrated the importance to dental health and development of massive doses of orange and lemon juice and is responsible for the consumption of a lot of your fruit today," Dr. Bryant, who is president of the research group when the child feeding work was done, said.

"It takes time for these facts to become widely known and it will be another ten years before the full benefit of the study is generally recognized," he said.

sports department of a New York newspaper.

His partner helped Uncle Mike drive the Madison Square Garden corporation out of the boxing business, but he thinks he doesn't need them any more.

"Why should I incur the displeasure of all newspapermen by trying up with two or three writers?" asks Jacobs. "I'm on my own from now on. I would have had to make up any loss in the past, and I'm in position to make up any deficit in the future."

So when you pay anywhere from $1.50 to $2.50 for a prize fight ticket in the future, you'll know that you are paying it to only one promoter, and that his name is Michael Straus Jacobs.

JACOBS LEADS WAY

In originally going into the promotion business openly, Jacobs' main idea was to get first crack at the main idea was to get first crack at a premium. Now he not only has the ducats, but the entire shebang, and makes the great Richard look like a piker. And he can use his big shot Garden stockholders in his business.

At the close of his first year as an associate of the Garden corporation, Jacobs reveals his fiscal production grossed $1,885,000 during that period.

In addition to the Louis-Schmeling pot of $1,015,000, Henry Armstrong belted Barney Ross before a $170,000 gate, and 16 shows in the Garden brought $700,000.

The Garden showed $116,000 more profit than it did for the previous year, which is just about what Jacobs paid it for ring rights. It earned $500,000 for the year, which, by the way, is substantial proof that sports are the last things hit by depressions and recessions.

Jacobs made up his mind he was through with the open air when the Armstrong-Lou Ambers affair was washed out with only $55,000 in the office at the Polo Grounds.

OUTSMARTED HIMSELF

Jacobs outsmarted himself on this one. Al Weil resigned as the Twentieth Century club's matchmaker last April, when Jacobs matched Ross and Armstrong over his head. Weil, who also manages Ambers, argued that Armstrong, the feather, should tackle Ambers, the lightweight, ahead of Ross, the welter.

He was right, for, while making a show for Ross, Armstrong convinced most people he also was too much for Ambers and consequently knocked Jacobs out of a rich gate. Switching the Armstrong-Ambers bout from the Polo Grounds to the Garden, where it belonged after Homicide Henry massacred Ross, cost Jacobs $15,000.

Jacobs also announces Joe Louis will go to the post no less than four times in 1938—in January, April, June and September.

San Francisco wants the June date as a feature of its world fair and may get it, with Max Baer in the other corner.

Meanwhile, Jacobs, through eliminations, will strive to develop three other opponents for the heavy-weight champion, the more promising candidate being Gunnar Bardlund, the Finn.

QUINCEPENED FINANCIAL MARKET

ON SILVER SALE

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Huge purchases of China's silver reserves by the U. S. Treasury have constituted one of the prime factors in enabling China to maintain its resistance to the Japanese invasion, according to a survey of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

As a result, the institute finds that China is in just as good shape financially for continuing the war as Japan and possibly even better.

Neither shows an indication of being near the point of financial exhaustion, although the institute believes China in the end will be forced to resort to inflation.

"No statements have ever been issued," the survey states, "to show how much silver has actually been taken over, but the silver deals between the U. S. Treasury and Chinese authorities have been so comprehensive that little Chinese silver has been sold on the open market since transactions between the two governments were first initiated. The price paid the Chinese apparently has been higher than that prevailing in the open market."

Estimated at $43,000,000

The institute finds that since November, 1935, when China was forced off the silver standard owing to the United States' action in arbitrarily boosting the price of silver to 45 cents an ounce, the Chinese fiscal authorities have handled roughly 1,200,000,000 Chinese dollars. At the United States price of 45 cents per ounce this makes a total of $540,000,000 U. S. dollars. Most of this, the institute says, has been sold to the U. S. Treasury. Nearly all of this has presumably been shipped out of China, much of it coming directly to the United States, and the remainder being held at either Hongkong or London awaiting shipment to its eventual American destination when the moment is favorable.

The second source of unofficial revenue that is enabling Chiang Kai-shek to keep up his resistance is that of the opium growing provinces of China, the institute says.

At the time Chiang Kai-shek's troops pursued Chinese Communist armies on their now world famous "Long March" across China, he seized the two provinces of Kweichow and Yunnan, which to the present are the main supply bases of South China's opium demand. Before the Japanese invasion, it was known these provinces were yielding annually $75,000,000. Chiang's war chest, but with the price of opium, the institute estimates that Chiang now has $100,000,000 annually from this source.

Japanese Figures Disputed

The institute's survey takes issue with the Japanese estimate that China now has only $600,000,000 of currency reserves left, with which to continue the struggle, with monthly expenses for that purpose running to $50,000,000.

While it seems likely that the Japanese estimates of China's imports of war material, the survey states, "have been at the least indicated, there is at least a possibility that at least part of these purchases have been prepaid by Chinese authorities through deliveries of raw materials under the terms of the German-Chinese barter agreement. Another part of the purchases from Germany probably did not require immediate cash payment as the same agreement provides for the shipment of raw materials to Germany at a later date."

As a consequence, the institute believes that China still has greater financial reserves than the Japanese estimate for continuing the war.

NO THUMB WEIGHING NOW

TOLEDO, (UP)—Butchers no longer weigh their thumbs with the meat—at least not intentionally, according to officials of a scale company here. The custom has been on the decline ever since someone invented the scale which the customer can read as easily as the merchant, they said.

DRIVE CAREFULLY—SAVE A LIFE—

"IT'S TERRIBLE, BUT—"

Fathers go on forever.

Wilberforce James Whiteman, 80, of Denver, Colo., visited New York the other day, and spoke briefly on music during an interview with reporters. Mr. Whiteman has been a teacher of music all his life. He has a son, Paul, of whom you may have heard.

"I hate jazz and swing music, and I despise crooning," said Father Whiteman. "There is no art in any of them."

Mr. Whiteman was very emphatic on this score. To make clear exactly how acute was his distaste for jazz he related that he had never allowed one note of it to be played in Denver's schools during the 40 years he had been music director of them.

Such remarks occupied the first few minutes of the interview. The next quarter of an hour or so was given over to talk about Paul. "All the same, I like Paul's manner of playing new things," Mr. Whiteman began, and the conversation proceeded from Paul's achievements as a small boy through his achievements as a man. "I think my son, Paul, is a humdinger," Mr. Whiteman concluded.

The world might move a little faster and with considerably less friction if one generation—as a generation—could look in the next with more of that mixture of tolerance and pride that is a father's.

"I don't approve of everything you're doing," is to be expected. "But what you're doing you're surely doing well," is the exhilarating remark a new generation needs to hear more often.

THIRTY YEARS OF FARM POWER

Speaking at the Conference on Power, at the Institute on Northwest Affairs, in Portland, Ore., Berkeley Snow, Secretary of the Northwest Electric Light and Power Association, discussed the remarkable progress that has been made by the private utilities in extending electric service to the farms of Idaho, Washington and Oregon. This is of more than regional interest, as it is indicative of what other utilities have achieved in other areas, notably in New England, California and the Middle Atlantic states.

One of the first, and possibly the very first, rural electric lines in the United States was constructed in the Hood River Valley, Oregon, more than 30 years ago. Development came slowly, but by 1923, 12 per cent of all the farms in Idaho, Washington and Oregon, 5000 in number, were electrified. Since that time there has been steady progress, and in 1937 more than 20,000 farms in the three states representing nearly 50 per cent of the total number had service.

Furthermore, if only farms having dwellings valued at more than $500 are considered—and it is apparent that any farm with a home worth less is a poor prospect for any commodity or service not vital to the maintenance of life—the percentage reached is 66.4.

This certainly doesn't look as if the private utilities are falling down on the job of serving the farmer, and it should be pointed out also that in most cases rural rates are the same, or very little higher, than urban rates. The utilities in the Northwest also maintain agricultural experts, who work with the farmers and help them obtain service and the right kind of power appliances. Every effort is made to avoid overselling the farmer, that is, saddle him with an expense he cannot comfortably meet. The utilities primarily are interested in giving the farmer the kind of service he needs and can pay for.

This is what private enterprise has been doing for 30 years, to bring a tireless "hired man" to the farm. It is an old story, in spite of political talk that would make one believe that rural electrification was unheard of prior to the government's power socialization program.

THE MACHINE AND MANKIND

Condensed from an address by Dr. James Thomas, President Chrysler Institute of Engineering, Detroit, Michigan, before the Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., as appeared in Christmas Club Magazine.

Does the Machine Kill and Maim?
Somebody said: "I don't like it because it is so full of accidents." Well, you kill more people in the homes than we do anywhere else, even on the roads, and certainly we kill too many. I am making safety speeches all over the country as fast as I can get to the places. We killed people in the horse and buggy days, too. In spite of all the people the automobiles kill, if you could figure it out on the basis of miles traveled per passenger, the automobile is safer than the horse and buggy. In 1912, 4,037 people were killed by horse and buggy runaways, and nobody went anywhere. Now we kill a lot of people because everybody goes everywhere.

We are overlooking a lot of little interesting facts like this. People have always had trouble with that sort of thing. It isn't the machine's fault at all; it is the other man's fault who is driving that machine. They got hold of this thing we call the industrial revolution first which only means a new technique for doing more work in less time.

Somebody said, "Well, I know, I might accept that, but it is unhealthy." Well, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, has recently given out the lowest death rate in all history. The lowest death rate in history is among the industrial policy holders of America.

Would it surprise you if I told you that the lowest rate of insanity in America is among the machine workers of America? That is true. You can't go crazy around a machine and stay that way long. There is something challenging about a machine. You ask what is the highest rate of insanity? Ah! among the women of the 14 southern states. Where are they from? Not in the cities, oh no! off of the farms. What are they there for? Ninety per cent of them from melancholia. The very loneliness of the farm life deranges them. This industrial civilization is making people young. The machine does not make people sick, it does not run them crazy, and we are not a nation of machine tenders. Would it surprise you if I told you that less than four per cent of the working population of America work with or about machines? That is statistically true.

Do Machines Put Men Out of Work?
Somebody said, "It puts people out of work." Philosophically this is the glory of the machine, not that it puts men out of work numerically, but that it releases masses for cultural pursuits for the first time in the history of mankind. What is Bertrand Russell says? "Any time prior to the invention of the steam engine, 90 per cent of the waking hours of 90 per cent of all populations on the planet devoted 90 per cent of those waking hours to the getting of food, clothing and shelter, scanty food, poor clothing, and miserable shelter at that. That is exactly what happened. Now released masses all over this western civilization of ours for eight hours of leisure, for recreation and cultural life. But that it throws men out of work numerically just can't be proved by statistics."

In England in 1790 it took 700 men to weave as much cloth as one man could weave in 1856. Somebody said, "What did you do with the 632? Well, that is a good question, but only a light-minded person would stop for the asking of it. I found that in 1779 there were 124,633 people working in the textile business in England. One hundred years later, in 1879, after Arkwright and Hargreaves had gotten busy and perfected the knitting and weaving machinery, while the population doubled, the number of people brought into the textile industry in England quadrupled. Somebody said, "That is just the textile industry." So I looked it up for the 14 major engineering trades in England, and I found the same thing, except that for some it went up six times as fast as the population increase would lead you to believe. Printing. Nobody was developing of printing machinery and cheap printing, multiplicity of books, magazines and papers, everybody started reading, and in spite of the increase in the production of the machine it took six times as many people in 1890 to print the stuff as it did in 1790 because nothing was being printed, to speak of, in that day. That is the situation, and that holds with reference to the 14 major engineering trades all over England.

I have figures I could give you no end, but in the tool trades, in shipbuilding, in hat making, in jewelry making, in textile work, in all of the major industries of England, these figures hold.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

By R. C. Hoiles

FREE MEDICAL SERVICE

With the President advocating an extension of the Social Security Act and free medical service, and a contributor contending that voters should write to their Senators demanding an Act for free medical service, the subject becomes worthy of consideration.

The contributor contends that the American Medical Association is a monopolistic group and must be broken up. Does the contributor know what a monopoly is? If there is any thing that is not a monopolistic group, it is the medical profession. Great doctors are different from great businesses. When a doctor makes some new medical discovery that will be of benefit to his fellow-doctors, he immediately makes it public to the world. He often even discusses it before he masters the subject himself. Not so with private business; it keeps it a secret and gives it a patent.

And in contrast with free public schools, where the teachers are inbred and can only teach what the mass, or majority, want taught, the doctors give of their time and energy to instructing the young doctors so that they also may become efficient. They certainly are in great contrast to the monopolies of government operations in general.

In another manner the doctors are anything but monopolistic. Practically every doctor gives away hundreds of dollars worth of services free every year; but certainly they are entitled to retain the right to determine to whom they will give free service.

One reason why free medical services would not be practical is that there is a vast difference in doctors and different people want a choice of doctors to serve them. If everyone should receive all the medical service he really could use, it would be an extremely expensive undertaking. And where would this money come from to make medicine free? If attempted to be made free, it could only be made free in a very meagre and unsatisfactory manner, because there are not enough doctors of the greatest skill to give complete medical and dental service to all.

And the pay for this would not come from the rich, as the taxes are not now coming from the rich, but it would come from the great middle class of honest workers. The wealth that would be paid the doctors would have to come from this class and they now are not able to pay the running expenses of the Federal Government at the rate of $100 per year for every worker; with our present government socialism we are eating up savings of the workers of the past. Why should we take more from the worker, who produces his right to have good, efficient medical service and more of the comforts of life and give it to those who do not produce? One of the greatest incentives for saving and sacrificing and doing without semi-luxuries, is the ability to get the best medical care in case of sickness.

Political Football

And if medical services were free, each patient would be obliged to take whatever doctor the government bureau decided to send him. And the bureau would send, undoubtedly, the best doctor to those who helped keep them in jobs. And individuals who did not agree with those in power would get the poorest. Who would like to have a man like Franklin Roosevelt or William Gibbs McAdoo, or their agents, selecting a doctor for them? And these men who control the doctors also would control their treatment. The doctors would not be able to use their own initiative and their own judgment. There would be no competition. The medical profession would sink to bureaucratic stagnation.

If there is anything that is impractical, because of the vast difference between doctors and the need of ever and ever better medical service, it is free medicine. It would be the death knell to progress in medical advancement.

1890, 1900, 1910? That is what our census shows. Would it surprise you if I told you that in 1875 only 324 people out of each thousand were gainfully employed, and in 1900, 100 out of every thousand, and between 1900 and 1930, that is the 30-year period of our most rapid technological development, we created 20 millions of new jobs and that now one workman out of every seven is making things his father never saw if he is past 55, and one man out of every four is making things his grandfather never saw if he is past 60. It is just the new jobs we have created, that is all.

The only infinite thing is human want, and as human want grows this machine must continue to supply the demands or we can't possibly live under our present standards.

Only As They Become Mechanized
Someone has said: "Well, growing occupations add new workmen." Yes, if they are mechanized. All the occupations in the country that are not mechanized are losing labor all the time. I have in my office a full page of the New York Times. It says, "This is a good automobile, price $5500, weight 4300 pounds," and then the impelling selling sentence in big block letters an inch high: "This is a good automobile. It has been known once to go 70 miles without a breakdown." What happened to the cars in those days? They were just playthings for rich men who had two or three mechanics to go with them down the street. Only a few men could have them. What has happened now? Mechanization has reduced the price six times, cut the weight in half, and made it forty times as efficient, and 25 millions of them are on the roads. What does that prove? Nearly ten times the proportion of our population today are making transportation equipment as ever worked at in the horse and buggy days.

A man said to me the other day, "I saw one road machine down here with twenty men laying as much concrete in a day as sixty men used to lay. What are you doing with the other forty men?"

Six times the proportion of our population are building roads as ever before. I have figured out how many men it would have taken to build all the concrete roads we have built since 1914 to 1930, and if we had done it by the old pick and shovel method it would have taken a fourth of our total population to lay the roads, which means we couldn't have had them at all. We are working more people, building roads and transportation equipment, in proportion to our population that was ever true before in the history of the world. So the machine has not put people out of work in that field. It has put them back to work.

Think of all the shoes, the clothes, all the things we ought to have. Production is the interesting phase of wealth creation. The only wealth we have I guess, economically speaking, is that that we produce out of nature's laws, and all the machine has done is to compress these laws and make it possible for fewer men working fewer hours to make more stuff to satisfy this insatiable want of humanity.

Why Do Americans Buy More Than They Need?

The only reason, I guess, that an American buys more than a Chinese man is because he produces more. If he ever stops producing more I have a suspicion he will stop buying more. That is an interesting thing for us to think about.

All through, this story runs, I have the statistics here for the various callings, the various occupations, and I can't find any statistics at all to prove that the machine throws people out of work. If you consider any reasonable period of time involved in the matter, now and then a man will lose a job because a new machine comes along and does the thing, but that is the law of progress, and our custom is not to fuss at the machine which has given this mass man the first time in the history of the world leisure for his cultural and recreational life, but to teach that occasional man thrown out of a job to do something else and go on with it. The progress of the human race from the cave man to now has been marked by the perfection of the tool with which he does the work of the world. Neighborhoods are worldwide, and things that we used to think of in terms of community gossip are now worldwide, and community problems have become worldwide problems. Those are things that we must think about.

Psychologically, too, there is something to be said in favor of the machine. In order to work about a machine you must be alert, obedient, full of action, but it gives comfort and it gets efficiency. The individual's reaction to the machine is tremendously important.

The Machine Cuts Toiling Hours.
There is a tremendous amount of loose criticism of the machine which is not based on any statistical facts that I can find at all. We live in a day of terrific indictment.

I think our solutions are correspondingly weak, and for the reason that we are indicting the wrong things. It is very important if you are going to bring an indictment that you pick out the right culprits. The machine has been the most beneficial thing that has come to the working man on this planet, and the working man who apparently is least informed about it is the fellow who has reaped the greatest benefit from it.

I can remember when fourteen hours was a common day among a lot of labor, and all of you can remember when the twelve-hour day in the steel mills was common. In 1810, eighteen hours was a legal day in England. They cut that down from eighteen to fourteen and then to twelve and then down to ten

Fellow Citizens: In the issue of

The Register dated July 30 appears an editorial headed "Tired of Socialism" in which the writer calls attention to where a public utility district, publicly owned, had failed to function properly, and had gone on the rocks and by popular vote, had been dissolved. He goes on to say that this is typical of "Thousands of public ownership projects." He also says they are "on record." Now he probably knows where they are to be found, but if he will carry his search to Oklahoma he may find as many as 50 towns and cities, in which the residents pay no city taxes; the revenue from their publicly owned utilities being sufficient to defray the expense of city government, at the same time rendering an efficient service, at a lower rate than that paid by residents of communities served by privately owned utilities.

This editorial concludes with the following broad statements, "Government in business is politics and patronage in business. It is waste in business. It is Socialism, the opposite of democracy." Instead of Socialism being the opposite of democracy, it is by the application of the principle of socialism in some of our institutions that democracy is enabled to function at its highest degree of efficiency.

It will be conceded by all that democracy can only be successful to its highest degree when its citizenry is intelligent and well informed.

Where can we find an institution better fitted, and that has the opportunity, and whose mission it is, to develop just that kind of citizen, than our public school system, which is owned and operated by the government through its various subdivisions.

We should always remember that in a democracy the unit of government is the individual citizen. The land, buildings and equipment of a school district belongs to the citizens of the district and is administered by a board, elected by the voters in the district. Thus it is plainly seen that our entire public school system is based on the principle of socialism; and instead of being opposed to democracy, is an indispensable aid to the successful operation of democratic government.

Then there is our great system of public highways, which form a network all over this great country of ours, some Federal, some state, and some county highways, all owned and maintained by the people (the government) for the use and well being of all the people; applied socialism again an aid to democracy.

Then let us take a look at our own beautiful city of Santa Ana, with her well kept tree-lined streets, her beautiful schools and public buildings, her efficient, well equipped fire department, a well manned police department, to protect the lives and property of her citizens, her own waterworks, with its power plant, wells, reservoir, and miles of mains, a sewer system to provide sanitary and health protection, all publicly owned and controlled. As proof of the economy and efficiency with which our water system is operated it will be found that although the rate is as low as the lowest, it is only during years when some major improvement or equipment had to be added that a substantial sum has not been turned into the city treasury. It is only necessary to mention our great U. S. Postal system, as an example of a non-profit institution, but rather as a business conducted for the sole purpose of rendering a great service to all the citizens of our Republic. There are very few people who do not believe in the operation of the above mentioned enterprise as now constituted.

Of course there will be found cases of inefficiency, dishonesty and graft, but in all such cases, the machinery is in the hands of the voters to correct such abuses. So surprising as it may seem, we all believe in Socialism, and hence are all socialists. But where we may differ is in the extent to which we should go, in socializing public utilities and industry.

But let the voice of the people prevail. I hope this discussion has made it clear that a socialist is not necessarily a wild eyed atheistic radical, but may be as loyal to our democracy and to Jesus Christ as anyone else.

Yours for more intelligent and open minded discussion
E. BEAMER.

Fellow Citizens:

A short time ago, I received operating results, of a railway company for the first five months of 1937, showing a loss of $188,755, also for the corresponding period of 1938, showing a loss of $704,522. The increase in loss for 1938, no doubt was due to the flood, causing extra expense and loss of receipts.

So in explaining my point I will use their 1937 report when conditions were nearer normal.

We know, the trouble with the railroads is a loss in revenue and an increase in taxes. So they resort to the same old remedy of borrowing money, raising rates, laying off employees and lowering wages, making their conditions worse.

What they need is a cure for these conditions; one that will increase their receipts and decrease their taxes.

The question is: How can this be accomplished?
"Townsendites" claim their plan will increase business and greatly decrease taxes. To what extent is, of course, a guess.

Due to the fact that a large amount of money would be put into circulation every 30 days, it stands to reason that receipts for railroads, and in fact receipts for all businesses, would increase at least 25 per cent. They also claim there would be no unemployed, hence, no need of unemployment insurance. And that the "Townsend Plan" would eliminate the need of a railroad pension.

The railway company's taxes for unemployment insurance and railroad pensions amounted to $117,637, which of course would be eliminated.

By doing away with WPA, PWA, SRA, CCC relief, and poor farms, and greatly reducing rent, taxes would be lowered at least 25 per cent. The railway company's taxes, such as federal, state, county and municipal show a total of $337,524.

Taking the railway company's figures and the above percentages of increase and decrease as a basis, let us see what the result will be.

These figures are facts and I believe the percentages are reasonable.

Receipts for freight, passenger, mail, etc., amounted to $4,707,372 railroad figures. We will add 25 per cent of this amount for increased business making a total of $5,884,215.

Here we will deduct the much talked of 2 per cent transaction tax amounting to $117,634, leaving a total of $5,766,581.

Now, we will deduct the operating cost of $4,440,966 plus 5 per cent increase, just to be on the safe side, making a total operating cost of $4,663,014 leaving a gain of $1,103,567.

Federal, state, etc., taxes were $337,524. The "Townsend Plan" reduces this tax 25 per cent, leaving a total tax of $253,143 to be deducted from the gross gain. Leaving a net gain of $850,424, compared with a loss of $188,755.

With these percentages I feel I have given the "Townsend Plan" the worst of the argument, because I believe that business would be increased 50 per cent instead of 25 per cent used in my estimate. In submitting my idea of the "Townsend Plan" and its effect on business, I am not prompted by a selfish motive. I have had a steady job with the same railway company for the past thirty-five years and I am eligible for a substantial pension under the "Railroad Retirement Act."

But how about you?
If the "Townsend Plan" will solve the railroad problem it will certainly do all they claim for it, and remember "Good times for industry mean good times for you."

With good times for you mean good times for the railroad.

Read the Bill H. R. 4199, study it thoroughly, figure what effect you think it will have on you or your business.

If you understand the monetary and profit systems, you will become a Townsendite.

Don't feel that you are giving the old folks anything because they are going out to drum up new business for you that you will never get any other way, and do this for a small 2 per cent commission on your gross receipts.

The larger their earnings the larger your profits. If at any time their commissions exceed $200 per month, the U. S. treasury will absorb the balance. You see by figures that the railway company paid the old folks $117,684 in commissions, whereas they earned for the company $338,864 compared with a loss of $188,755, or a difference of $1,027,403.

Don't think of the "Townsend Plan" as a pension plan, because in reality it is a recovery plan that will mean permanent prosperity for everyone.

HOW MUCH DEBT CAN WE STAND?

By ERNEST MINOR PATTERSON
President, American Academy of Political and Social Science

The Savings Bank Association of the State of New York favors a proposed amendment to the State Constitution placing a limit on the bonded indebtedness of each county, city, town or village. These bankers are directly concerned with the effect of such debts on real estate since the taxes of these governmental units are levied chiefly on real property, and since large debts necessitate high taxes to meet interest and sinking fund payments. This raises a much larger issue. One of the most disturbing features of our economic organization is the size and variety of debts. Borrowing is always a tempting way to solve a financial problem and misleads not only governments but private corporations and individuals. Often the reasons are good and at times it is difficult to see how borrowing can well be avoided.

Illustrations are abundant. The federal government has borrowed extensively, especially since 1917 and even more extensively since 1930, and its indebtedness will soon be about $40,000,000,000. States, cities, counties, towns and villages, school districts and other governmental units have done the same during recent years. Private corporations have secured large loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and at present the head of that body is urging banks of the country to lend more freely to private borrowers with the intimation that, if they do not, the government will increase its invasion of the banking field. With high grade bonds at a premium, many corporations in a position to do so are calling public and private.

Nevertheless, there is a probability, if not a near certainty, that borrowing may be overdone. There will, of course, always be some loans made and some enterprises undertaken that will be ill-advised and will fail. Mistakes in judgment are to be expected and a certain number of these errors are to be thought of as "normal." But they are apt to be more numerous when prices are rising and optimism is prevalent.

Most serious is the effect upon government and business when there is a business reaction and prices fall. A debt that can be easily carried in good times becomes an impossible burden in bad times. As corporate earnings fall there comes first the necessity of passing dividends and if the debt is large defaults and failures soon follow. Reduced national income at such times lessens tax collections and promptly places all governmental bodies in a difficult position.

If we only knew how to prevent these harassing business cycles the story would be different. But we do not. More power to those who are hunting for devices to limit the growth of indebtedness, both public and private.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The President's committee to find out why labor conditions in England and Sweden are better than here, has slipped into the country, unannounced....the sea air was wonderful....the cuisine on American boats was excellent....this seems to sum up the conservative results of the junket.

The committee will get together secretly in New York the 24th to complete a report, but the substance of it has already been written or agreed upon. No recommendations for legislation will be offered. Specifically, no changes in the national labor relations board will be suggested. The gist of the report will set forth the impossibility of comparing employer or employee conditions there and here.

Several who have read advance copies have gained the idea that the main reason for labor peace in England and Sweden may be that both employers and employees are organized collectively and deal with each other with restraint and fairness. The employers without spies and the employees without Communists.

Last year, the President sent a commission to Europe to study co-operatives. Nothing came of that either.

Next year's commission probably will study the comparative kick in French wines and the more complete relaxation offered by siestas on the Riviera.

Note—A minority report urging some change in the NLRB act may be filed by one committee member. (American Rolling Mills President Hook.)

Less jolite consideration will be given NLRB by the executive committee of AFL next week at Atlantic City. The committee will keep the blinds down as it will be privately preparing agenda for the national convention, but committee members are packing their dictionaries for the fray and not their gloves.

Some action against NLRB will be recommended to the convention, but what form it will take is not yet certain.

AFL is just about fed up with NLRB. The way AFL applicants for elections have been delayed, and the way AFL officials have been treated personally there have engendered considerable feeling.

Also the executive council is taking along a newspaper clipping of a national poll indicating 92 per cent of the people believe NLRB has favored CIO, eight per cent believe it has favored AFL.

Texas may repeat its failure to nominate everyone Mr. Roosevelt requested. At least some Texas legislators have that feeling. Senators Sheppard and Rep. Dies went down to the White House the other day to ask for a $5,500,000 PWA allotment to build a Rockland dam project in the San Antonio river....

"Sorry....Texas has used up all its PWA share."

Southern congressmen are shivering for Senators George and preferred stock, securing the funds through the sale of bonds.

It would be a sign of ignorance to criticize all of these increases in bonded debt. Some of them are to be approved. It is correct to say, as some have done, that most or much of this borrowed money has been used in ways that add to the tangible wealth of the country and often to its less tangible assets. Many corporations are strengthening their positions by refinancing. Also much must be said for borrowing in a period of rising prices since the borrowed funds can often be used so advantageously that the carrying charges on them are less than the gain derived through their use.

Nevertheless, there is a probability, if not a near certainty, that borrowing may be overdone. There will, of course, always be some loans made and some enterprises undertaken that will be ill-advised and will fail. Mistakes in judgment are to be expected and a certain number of these errors are to be thought of as "normal." But they are apt to be more numerous when prices are rising and optimism is prevalent.
